Mumma Bear teaches Jane, Billy and John how to enjoy their surroundings and relax to the sounds of nature surrounding them. Meditation: Mumma teaches, Life is a mixture of changing colours: We all have sad times and happy times: We have angels protecting us and within the Meditation they are encouraged to: allow all the gloomy, sad feelings you have, to flow to the surface of your mind and - see them - floating up and up - becoming part of the clouds. See the clouds start to glow as they come into the light of the sun and turn into vapor in the clear air - they are no more. You are beginning to feel better. Jane Billy and John say: Thank you Mumma. Park Visit: Dad and Mumma Bear take them on a visit to the Park. They take time to notice the things around them. They look at the trees and flowers. They have fun collecting leaves and grasses. Afterwards Mumma Bear shows them how to: Print with Leaves. Beach Visit. Dad and Mumma Bear take Jane, Billy and John to the Beach. Jane sees a Mountain and some rock stepping stones. Mumma Bear teaches them how problems can be mountains or stepping stones and more... sometimes like our problems. Mumma Bear says: Sometimes things happen to us and we feel like there is a mountain of problems to fix. If we think of the problems as just stepping stones it is a help. Jane said: Like doing my maths homework? That can be like a mountain! Mumma Bear: Yes, if you take your time and learn how to do each sum, this can be like stepping stones to solving bigger problems. Or if someone is unkind to us, this can be a sad mountain. If this happens, think to yourself, 'Why is that person being unkind?' They must be unhappy... and don't take any notice. This is like using stepping stones. Later, they collect sand and small shells and seaweed. Painting with PVA and sand and sea shells etc. Afterwards Mumma Bear teaches them how to make a beach painting. Meditation: Goal Setting. Mumma Bear takes them into a scene where they realise that they all have the ability to accomplish everything they set their mind to. Rumble Bear Dean Harman, 2017-04-06 Only the biggest, strongest male grizzly bears will wade into the red salmon river today. The icy water splashes over the chest of one of the oldest warrior grizzlies in the valley. His piercing eyes stare into the white foam dancing along the river's current. He carefully places one massive paw above the waterline, stoically waiting for his next slippery salmon to appear. The other grizzlies keep their distance as they know this old-timer has fought more battles than most. No one knows where he came from or how he collected all those scars, but his stride is long and purposeful and his huge head bobs and sways back and forth as he moves. Only the lazy circles of a golden eagle far above him give away his secret as the legends tell us that only king grizzlies travel with that royal companion. A sockeye salmon springs out from the froth and as razor sharp claws smash into its flesh, a perfectly-timed bite along its back ends the wriggling salmon's journey. The old grizzly glances up and down the river, and all the other grizzlies wait and watch as the huge brown beast saunters into the willows to feed. The other bears relax as it is now once again safe to hunt along the water's edge. One bear stands and sniffs the air wondering if he could find the courage to follow a grizzly like that into the dark. He dreams of what he could learn and see if he dared trail a grand grizzly into the wilderness. He pauses and steadies himself as he takes one last look up and down the shoreline at frightened bears nervously waiting for their salmon to appear. The young bear decides he can no longer live in fear and boldly shoulders his way into the cool moist brush. The tall willows happily lean over inviting him to take his next step into a new world.

He lost one kidney, and his remaining kidney was damaged in the same accident. Alexandre is still stricken with grief over the loss of his birth parents. He grapples with his feelings of confusion about the meaning of life and death. He wishes he had died with them. Alexandre also has a hero, an individual from history, Alexei Romanov, Crown Prince of Russia, who was executed in 1918 at age thirteen. Thus, Alexandre prefers to be called Alexei. During the cruise, Alexei finds many adventures and makes new acquaintances who have profound impacts on his present and future life. These new acquaintances include a beautiful girl and a rough boy with an attitude who sees Alexei as a threat to him. Alexei loses his kidney.
