Painting Guide for the Boeing Stratofortress Motherships Brian Lockett,2009-07-01 This document tracks the changes to the appearance of the two Boeing B-52 Stratofortresses that were modified to carry and launch the North American X-15 rocket planes. The two NB-52s went on to launch the X-15A-2, Northrop HL-10, Northrop M2-F2, and Martin-Marietta X-24A. The NB-52A retired in October 1969, but the NB-52B soldiered on until November 2004, launching a wide variety of unmanned research vehicles and parachute test devices. The appearance of the NB-52s changed many times over the years. These changes are illustrated in this document. There are fourteen sets of illustrations for the NB-52A and eighteen sets of illustrations for the NB-52B. The Stratofortress motherships are popular subjects for modelers. Their special missions capture the imagination. The liberal application of DayGlo orange, DayGlo red, and yellow makes them a couple of the most colorful B-52s. This document will help modelers to reproduce the correct appearance of either Stratofortress for any particular mission.

Big Bombers Robert F. Dorr, Jim Benson, 1989 Bogen giver en beskrivelse af Strategic Air Commands (SAC) og dets bombefly og tankfly.

The B-52 Can it Fly Until 2050? ,2000 A recent Department of Defense program initiative would keep the B-52H Bomber flying until the year 2050. This proposal, which extends the life of the B-52H for an unprecedented 90-year term is understandable in light of current Department of Defense budget constraints, but questions of effectiveness and feasibility remain. The bottom-line question is, Can the B-52H survive as an adequate strategic bomber until the projected 2050 phase out? With the next generation bomber not scheduled to be fully mission- capable until 2037, it is critical that the existing data be examined to determine the feasibility of the current projection. This paper builds a foundation by highlighting the extensive B-52H history of aircraft modifications and mission changes. These significant modifications to the B-52H provided additional capabilities, which are key factors in the B-52H's ability to survive in today's strategic environment. The second major section addresses the possibility of modifying or extending the life of the B-52H airframe, and the effectiveness of such a weapon system in the future strategic environment. This section is subdivided into three areas. The first area will analyze data concerned with B-52H structural integrity. The focus of the second area of analysis is the acquisition of spare parts. The third and final area of analysis is the level of survivability the B-52 H has against current and future threats. The third and final section of this paper concerns the conclusions and implications resulting from the historical evidence and analysis presented in sections one and two. In addition, implications from this study are presented in an effort to provide the reader with informed speculations as to what the previous research implies.

The B-52 Stratofortress Meg Greene, 2002-12-15 Discusses history of the B-52 Stratofortress warplane and its use in the military campaigns in Afghanistan after the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

Inside the Cold War Chris Adams, 2004-12-01 General Adams reflects on his experiences in the cold war, during which he served in both manned bombers and missile silos. He tells stories of famous and not-so-famous cold warriors, including some from the US Navy. Some stories are humorous; some stories are tragic. Having traveled extensively in Russia and some former Soviet Union states after retirement, General Adams tells us about his former adversaries, the Soviet cold warriors. In the process, he leaves no doubt about his respect for all who served so valiantly in the strategic triad--the strategic command, the ICBM force, and the submarine Navy.

In-Flight Simulators and Fly-by-Wire/Light Demonstrators Peter G. Hamel, 2017-03-15 This book offers the first complete account of more than sixty years of international research on In-Flight Simulation and related development of electronic and electro-optic flight control system technologies ("Fly-by-Wire" and "Fly-by-Light"). They have provided a versatile and experimental procedure that is of particular importance for verification, optimization, and evaluation of flying qualities and flight safety of manned or unmanned aircraft systems. Extensive coverage is given in the book to both fundamental information related to flight testing and state-of-the-art advances in the design and implementation of electronic and electro-optic flight control systems, which have made In-Flight Simulation possible. Written by experts, the respective chapters clearly show the interdependence between various aeronautical disciplines and in-flight simulation methods. Taken together, they form a truly multidisciplinary book that addresses the needs of not just flight test engineers, but also other aeronautical scientists, engineers and project managers and historians as well. Students with a general interest in aeronautics as well as researchers in countries with growing aeronautical ambitions will also find the book useful. The omission of mathematical equations and in-depth theoretical discussions in favor of fresh discussions on innovative experiments, together with the inclusion of anecdotes and fascinating photos, make this book not only an enjoyable read, but also an important incentive to future research. The book, translated from the German by Ravindra Jategaonkar, is an extended and revised English edition of the book Fliegende Simulatoren und Technologieträger, edited by Peter Hamel and published by Appelhans in 2014.

Missile Guidance and Control Systems George M. Siouris, 2006-05-07 Airborne Vehicle Guidance and Control Systems is a broad and wide- angled engineering and technological area for research, and continues to be important not only in military defense systems but also in industrial process control and in commercial transportation networks such as various Global Positioning Systems (GPS). The book fills a long-standing gap in the literature. The author is retired from the Air Force Institute and received the Air Force's Outstanding Civilian Career Service Award.

Quieting the Boom Lawrence R. Benson, 2013

Lockheed A-12 Paul F. Crickmore, 2014-01-20 During the early years of the Cold War, the most effective way to gather strategic intelligence about the Soviet Union and its allies was manned overflight. Lockheed's U-2 was spectacularly successful in this role, however, much to the concern of US President Eisenhower, its shape meant that it could be tracked on Russian radars. Given the highly sensitive nature of such flights, the President insisted that every effort should be made to reduce to zero the U-2's radar cross section (RCS), thereby making the aircraft invisible. When this was proven to be impossible, the stage was set for a U-2 replacement. Following a competition between Lockheed and Convair, the former was declared the winner and the result was the A-12. Designed to incorporate 'stealth' features before the term was even coined, the A-12 has to date proven to be the fastest, highest flying jet aircraft ever built. This book will also cover a two-seat variation of the design built as an advanced interceptor – the YF-12.

Air Force Handbook 1 U. S. Air Force, 2018-07-17 This handbook implements AFD 36-22, Air Force Military Training. Information in this handbook is primarily from Air Force publications and contains a compilation of policies, procedures, and standards that guide Airmen's actions within the Profession of Arms. This handbook applies to the Regular Air Force, Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard. This handbook contains the basic information Airmen need to understand the professionalism required within the Profession of Arms. Attachment 1 contains references and supporting information used in this publication. This handbook is the sole source reference for the development of study guides to support the enlisted promotion system. Enlisted Airmen will use these study guide to prepare for their Promotion Fitness Examination (PFE) or United States Air Force Supervisory Examination (USAFSE).
