Arms, Transparency, and Security in South-East Asia Bates

Gill, J. N. Mak, 1997 This report, jointly sponsored by SIPRI and the Maritime Institute of Malaysia (MIMA), draws together the work of eight experts on armaments and Asia-Pacific security affairs to present analysis and extensive data on arms- and defence-related transparency mechanisms in South-East Asia. It also includes a de facto arms trade register for South-East Asia covering the period 1975-96. The book will prove useful to security analysts and policy makers seeking analysis of and practical approaches to transparency and confidence building in South-East Asia.

An Arms Race in Post-cold War Southeast Asia Amitav

Acharya, 1994 In the prevailing climate of uncertainty and apprehension about Southeast Asia's security outlook in the post-Cold War era, this study looks at the question of whether there is an impending arms race in the region. It examines the factors behind the recent trends towards increased defence spending and force modernisation in countries in the region and what efforts should and can be undertaken to ensure that this build-up does not become a threat to regional security and stability.

Arms Watch Edward J. Laurance, Siemon T. Wezeman, Herbert

Wulf,1993 This report documents the government submissions to the UN on the transfer of arms in seven weapons categories in 1992 and compares this data with information published by SIPRI in its arms trade register. It assesses the results of the UN register and the prospects for improving it in 1994.

The International Arms Trade Edward J. Laurance,1992 The events of 1991 in the Persian Gulf, which saw Iraq import enough armaments to defy the major powers, have brought the questions of arms trading to the head of the international agenda. In this text, international relations theory is applied to the transfer of military capability for the purpose of fortifying the national security of sovereign states. The author examines past patterns of arms transfer and the influences of international factors on policymakers. International relations theory is applied to the transfer of military capability for the purpose of fortifying the national security of sovereign states. The author examines past patterns of arms transfer and the influences of international factors on policymakers, in order to show that the arms trade has gone far beyond the control of individual nation states.

Taking Stock Malcolm Chalmers,Owen Greene,1995 The transfer and accumulation of major conventional weapons is a key issue for international security. Currently, the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms is the only global security regime dealing with this issue. Established after the Gulf War, it aims to promote conventional arms transparency in order to help to prevent establishing arms build-ups, reduce unnecessary suspicions, and promote regional security-building measures. This book provides the first detailed examination of the experience of the Register after two years of operation. In that period, the Register demonstrated its potential importance, but also the severe challenges of establishing an effective global conventional arms transparency regime.

Developing the UN Register of Conventional Arms Malcolm Chalmers, 1994 Revised papers presented at a workshop organised by the Monterey Institute of International Studies, the Bonn International Center for Conversion and the Dept. of Peace Studies, Bradford University and held in Monterey, Calif., Apr. 6-9, 1994.

SIPRI Yearbook 1994 Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 1994 The SIPRI Yearbook 1994 continues SIPRI's review of the latest developments in nuclear weapons, world military expenditure, the international arms trade and arms production, chemical and biological weapons, the proliferation of ballistic missile technology, armed conflicts in 1993, and nuclear and conventional arms control. It is the most complete and authoritative source available for up-to-date information in war studies, strategic studies, peace studies, and international relations.

SIPRI Yearbook 1995 Stockholm International Peace

Research Institute,1995 The SIPRI Yearbook 1995 continues SIPRI's review of the latest developments in regional security, nuclear weapons, world military expenditure, the international arms trade and arms production, chemical and biological weapons, armed conflicts, and nuclear and conventional arms control in1994.

Arms Control and Disarmament Adam Daniel Rotfeld,2000

This paper presents the proceedings of a panel discussion organised by the Department for Disarmament Affairs and SIPRI held at the United Nations in New York, 1 May 2000. The panel discussion was part of series of events intended to deepen the discussion on disarmament and security related issues and to find a new approach to arms control following the end of the cold war. The paper is aimed primarily at those in government and the academic community.
