The Colfax Massacre LeeAnna Keith, 2009 Drawing on a large body of documents, including eyewitness accounts and evidence from the site itself, Keith explores the racial tensions that led to the Colfax massacre - during which surrendering blacks were mercilessly slaughtered - and the reverberations this message of terror sent throughout the South.

Car Suspension and Handling Donald Bastow, Geoffrey Howard, John P. Whitehead, 2004 Through appendices and diagrams, Car Suspension and Handling, Fourth Edition, outlines the purpose and history of vehicle suspension systems, while defining the basic parameters of suspension geometry. In addition, the book delves into human sensitivity to vibration and offers data on durability, tyre background information, steering calculations and suspension calculations. While always recognizing that there are differences in suspension requirements for different classes of vehicles and in various markets of the world for a given vehicle, this book focuses on the suspension and handling of cars or automobiles, as opposed to those characteristics of other types of road vehicles. Engineers in the automotive industry who are involved with handling analysis and design, students seeking more thorough understanding of the fundamental concepts and potential problem areas, and university/college libraries.

Dice, Brassknuckles and Guitar F. Scott Fitzgerald, 2024-02-27 »Dice, Brassknuckles & Guitar« is a short story by F. Scott Fitzgerald, originally published in 1923. F. SCOTT FITZGERALD [1896-1940] was an American author, born in St. Paul, Minnesota. His legendary marriage to Zelda Montgomery, along with their acquaintances with notable figures such as Gertrude Stein and Ernest Hemingway, and their lifestyle in 1920s Paris, has become iconic. A master of the short story genre, it is logical that his most famous novel is also his shortest: The Great Gatsby [1925].

Design Paradigms Henry Petroski, 1994-05-27 Case histories of engineering success and failure are presented to enrich understanding of the design process.

Advertising and the Transformation of American Society, 1865-1920 James Norris, 1990-10-24 In the period between 1865 to 1920, as America shifted from a rural-farming economy to urban-manufacturing, a major transformation also occurred in the behavior of the country's consumers. This change is perhaps best illustrated in the advertisements that appeared in popular magazines. They began by simply informing consumers of the cost and availability of a product, but, by 1920, they were projecting an image that defined the American dream in terms of a consumption ethic. In this historical analysis of advertisements, James Norris explores this transformation of society and its ads, and the role that advertising played in developing a national market for consumer goods, creating demand for mass-produced items, and shifting the consumption habits of Americans. Focusing primarily on popular journals and magazines with national circulations, Norris traces how, by the 1920s, America had become a society in which consumption and spending had replaced old virtues. He examines a number of issues affecting this change, including how national markets developed, how consumers were convinced to buy products they had never seen before, what appeals manufacturers used to build markets, and how consumers were persuaded to purchase items that had previously been produced locally or in the home. Other factors that played a role in the transformation are also considered, such as the breakdown of localism, an increasingly educated citizenry, the potential for mass production, and a growth in per-capita income. Whenever possible, the advertisements themselves have been quoted and reproduced, fully illustrating Norris' premise that they are mirrors of the society that produced them. This study will be an important resource for courses in business history, economics, women's studies, and the history of advertising, as well as a valuable addition to college, university, and public libraries.

Today and Tomorrow Henry Ford, 2019-01-22 Winner of the 2003 Shingo Prize! Henry Ford is the man who doubled wages, cut the price of a car in half, and produced over 2 million units a year. Time has not diminished the progressiveness of his business philosophy, or his profound influence on worldwide industry. The modern printing of Today and Tomorrow features an introduction by James J.

Formula 1 Car by Car 1990-99 Peter Higham, 2021-05-18

The formative years of the 1950s are explored in this fourth installment of Evro's decade-by-decade series covering all Formula 1 cars and teams. When the World Championship was first held in 1950, red Italian cars predominated, from Alfa Romeo, Ferrari and Maserati, and continued to do so for much of the period. But by the time the decade closed, green British cars were in their ascendancy, first Vanwall and then rear-engined Cooper playing the starring roles, and BRM and Lotus having walk-on parts. As for drivers, one stood out above the others, Argentine Juan Manuel Fangio, becoming World Champion five times. Much of the fascination of this era also lies in its numerous privateers and also-rans, all of which receive their due coverage in this complete work. Year-by-year treatment covers each season in fascinating depth, running through the teams -- and their various cars -- in order of importance. Alfa Romeo's supercharged 11/2-litre cars dominated the first two years, with titles won by Giuseppe Farina (1950) and Fangio (1951). The new marque of Ferrari steamrollered the opposition in two seasons run to Formula 2 rules (1952-53), Alberto Ascari becoming champion both times, and the same manufacturer took two more crowns with Fangio (1956) and Mike Hawthorn (1958). Maserati's fabulous 250F, the decade's most significant racing car, propelled Fangio to two more of his five championships (1954 and 1957).

German manufacturer Mercedes-Benz stepped briefly into Formula 1 (1954-55) and won almost everything with Fangio and up-and-coming Stirling Moss. Green finally beat red when the Vanwalls, driven by Moss and Tony Brooks, won the inaugural constructors' title (1958). Then along came Cooper, rear-engine pioneers, to signpost Formula 1's future when Jack Brabham became World Champion (1959).

McLaren F1 GTR Mark Cole, 2020-10 Twenty-five years on from its famous début victory in the 1995 Le Mans 24 Hours, the wonderful McLaren F1 GTR is the subject of this major two-volume history. Derived from the BMW V12-powered three-seat McLaren F1 road car, the F1 GTR only came into existence because of customer pressure on designer Gordon Murray to produce a racing version. With 28 examples built over three seasons, the F1 GTR was fabulously successful, winning 41 of its 131 races and taking two international championship titles. This sumptuous book outlines the life of the McLaren F1 GTR in exhaustive depth, with Volume 1 devoted to race-by-race narrative and Volume 2 to individual car histories and the stories of the people who raced them, all supported by over 775 colour photographs.

My Forty Years with Ford Charles E. Sorensen, Samuel T. Williams, 2006-01-09 An unflinching eyewitness account of the Ford story as told by one of Henry Ford's closest associates.

Jas a Munro & Co Ian Berg, 2021-02-15 This is the story of James (Jas) A Munro, a Scottish immigrant. In 1891, he arrived in Melbourne with a shilling in his pocket. Munro established a series of successful enterprises, including a bedding and a spring manufacturing business. In the early part of the twentieth century, he was smitten by the emergence of the horseless carriage and became one of the largest motor agents in the country. He established a very successful garage and coachbuilding operation. To do so he acquired and developed large premises next to the iconic Queen Victoria Market. This became known as the 'Munro site'. And then the war came. Munro changed and so did his business. He established another enterprise, this time in Sydney. He even went on to own a radio station. Munro was complex, and his curiosity took him in different directions. He had many interests and many connections. There is, however, one constant in his story. It is the Munro site, a site now integrally linked into the development of the market. The Munro archives survived, and they are extraordinary. Jas A Munro & Co: The Largest Garage in Melbourne arose out of a chance discovery of this archival treasure trove. The records, privately held, were undisturbed and unseen for nearly a century. Access to them has finally enabled this wonderful story to be told. The Munro story is one of commerce in early Melbourne, the evolution of the motor industry in Australia, and the changes forced upon it by a globally disruptive event. The book is lavishly illustrated, and the majority of photographs have never before been published. It is testament to the life and enterprise of an extraordinary businessman in Australia at the start of twentieth century.

Machine that Changed the World James P. Womack, Daniel T. Jones, Daniel Roos, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1990
Draws conclusions for the future of the industry in the USA.

New Zealand's Motor Cycle Heritage Maureen Anne Bull, 1986
When the Japanese Honda factory produced their reliable little machines, they heralded the demise of the British motorcycle industry's dominance. This book illustrates the end of one era and the birth of a huge range of motorcycles which offered affordable motoring for everyone. Scooters replaced smaller clip-on motors and farmers replaced horses and light tractors with the all-terrain-vehicle. John Britten received world recognition for his revolutionary design and Kiwi riders have become world title holders in speedway, road racing and motocross.

Tinkering Kathleen Franz,2011-06-07 In the first decades after mass production, between 1913 and 1939, middle-class Americans not only bought cars but also enthusiastically redesigned them. By examining the ways Americans creatively adapted their automobiles, Tinkering takes a fresh look at automotive design from the bottom up, as a process that included manufacturers, engineers, advice experts, and consumers in various guises. Franz argues that automobile ownership opened new possibilities for ingenuity among consumers even as large corporations came to control innovation. Franz weaves together a variety of sources, from serial fiction to corporate documents, to explore tinkering as a form of authority in a culture that valued ingenuity. Women drivers represented one group of consumers who used tinkering to advance their claim to social autonomy. Some canny drivers moved beyond modifying their individual cars to become independent inventors, patenting and selling automotive accessories for the burgeoning national demand for aftermarket products. Earl S. Tupper was one such tinkerer who went on to invent Tupperware. These savvy tinkerers worked in a changing landscape of invention shaped increasingly by automotive giants. By the 1930s, Ford and General Motors worked to change the popular discourse of ingenuity and used the world's fairs of the Depression as a stage to promote a hierarchy of innovation. Franz not only demonstrates the entrepreneurial spirit of American consumers but she engages larger historical questions about gender, consumption and ingenuity while charting the impact corporate expansion on tinkering during the first half of the twentieth century.
