Cosplay New Zealand Sylvie Kirkman,2014 Cosplay is a hobby that attracts attention. For better or for worse, when cosplayers descend on an event they are highly visible, and act both as a free form of advertising for the event, and as a display of performance art. Costumes may be outlandish or deceptively simple, instantly recognisable or incredibly obscure; but all represent an individual's passion for creativity and for the character they have chosen. The dedication and skill that goes into crafting these costumes can be appreciated by onlookers as well as other cosplayers, and cosplay is rapidly becoming recognised as an art form in its own right. This body of work examines cosplay and its transformation into a separate art form, and its representation within the New Zealand cosplay community. Sylvie Kirkman, hailing from Wellington, New Zealand, has been cosplaying and costuming for over a decade. She has won numerous awards for her costumes, including an international title with friend and fellow cosplayer Lucy Morris. After cutting her teeth on cosplay Sylvie went on to work in costume design and construction for theatrical and film projects.

Includes a bonus short story! Travel to Mirage, the world on the other side of the Styx, and meet simple farmer Jeran Windwalker whose quest to find a golden bird quickly gets him in over his head when he meets cursed maiden Michaela Sandstorm and falls in love. Only some 'Enforcing' from an unlikely ally will help these two figure out who the real enemy is before it's too late.
