

Air Cushioned Landing Craft

United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Department of Defense

Landing Craft, Air Cushion in Action John Gourley, 2016 In 1966 a Landing Craft Coordinating Group was assembled to discuss and draft specifications for a new landing craft. The work resulted in the Patrol Air Cushion Vehicle (PACV) that saw service in Vietnam. By 1970 designs for an Amphibious Assault Landing Craft (AALC) were on the drawing board. The US Navy ordered the first three LCACs February 1982. LCACs move over rocks and other beach obstacles and have reduced susceptibility to damage from mines. The crew consists of five enlisted personnel: Deck Engineer, Load Master, Navigator, Engineer, and Craft Master. LCACs are not given names, only pennant numbers, to differentiate among them. With an originally specified 30-year life expectancy, LCACs would have begun to retire in 2004 except for a major Service Life Extension Program (SLEP) begun in 2001.

Assessment of the Heavy Lift Landing Craft, Air Cushioned Peter J. Thede, 1995 This assessment looks at a number of alternatives for employing air-cushioned lighters in Logistics Over the Shore (LOTS) operations. The evaluation focuses on determining the suitability of the proposed Heavy Lift Landing Craft, Air Cushioned (HLLCAC) to perform a LOTS or joint LOTS role. The area of Joint Logistics Over The Shore (JLOTS) has received renewed emphasis over the past several years. The Army and Naval Services and each of the five regional Commanders in Chief (CINCs) have stated requirements for LOTS or JLOTS operations in time of conflict. This assessment evaluates the capability of the HLLCAC, and the current Landing Craft, Air Cushioned (LCAC), to perform JLOTS missions specified by two of the regional CINCs. It also explores, from a Navy LOTS perspective, whether making these lighters available for Maritime Prepositioned Force (MPF) ship discharge would reduce the time required to conduct in-stream or offshore operations. To aid in this analysis, a new analytic tool is introduced and utilized, the Joint Over-the-shore Transportation Estimator (JOTE). The assessment reveals that the current version of air-cushioned craft, the LCAC, is most suited for LOTS or JLOTS operations conducted inside 10 nautical miles from shore. The proposed HLLCAC would be better employed with the Amphibious Task Force beyond that distance. The assessment underscores the need for obtaining Air Cushioned Vehicle Landing Platforms which enable the LCAC to fly-on, load, and then fly-off a stable floating platform adjacent to a cargo ship.--Abstract

Theory and Design of Air Cushion Craft Liang Yun, Alan Bliault, 2000-05-26 This definitive text describes the theory and design both of Air Cushion Vehicles (ACV) and Surface Effect Ships (SES). It begins by introducing hovercraft types and their development and application throughout the world in the last three decades, before going on to discuss the theoretical aspects of ACV and SES craft covering their hovering performance, dynamic trim over calm water, resistance, stability, manoeuvrability, skirt configuration and analysis of forces acting on the skirts, ACV and SES seakeeping, and the methodology of scaling aerodynamic and hydrodynamic forces acting on the ACV/SES from model test data. The latter chapters describe a design methodology, including design criteria and standard methods for estimating craft performance, lift system design, skirt design, hull structure, propulsion systems and power unit selection. Much technical information, data, and references to further work on hovercraft and SES design is provided. The book will be a useful reference to engineers, technicians, teachers, students (both undergraduate and postgraduate), operators etc. who are involved in ACV/SES research, design, construction and operation. Guides the reader on how to perform machinery and systems selection within ACV and SES overall design For teachers, students (both at under- and post-graduate level), engineers and technicians involved in ACV/SES

China's Evolving Surface Fleet Peter Dutton, Ryan D. Martinson, 2017 Over the past fifteen years, the People's Liberation Army Navy's (PLAN's) missile fast-attack craft and amphibious fleets have been significantly modernized. While these two types of vessels have not increased in numbers, their capabilities have increased exponentially. This publication examines the People's Liberation Army's (PLA's) doctrine and training strategy in order to analyze present and predict future missions by these military vessels. China's deterrence posture is improved greatly by these ships and boats, which aid coastal water defense, and threaten Taiwanese attempts to gain independence. In addition, these two fleets improve China's long-range sealift capabilities, and help with the PLA's traditional, and new, nontraditional security practices. These fleets allow the PLAN to continue offshore operations, and begin blue-water, or far-seas operations, helping the United States to predict the future nature of Chinese maritime missions.
