Arrogante roommate Estha First,2024-03-25 After a long musical tour, Jennifer goes on holiday to a charming country village to recharge her batteries. While there, she meets a handsome, arrogant and famous writer sharing the same accommodation as her. Caught up in their overflowing egos, they wage a merciless war until they break down and realise that a genuine affection is developing between them despite their arguments. However, when their professional lives call for them to return to the city, they are faced with a decisive choice: write a love story together or leave this romance behind.

Un hombre arrogante Kim Lawrence,2011-10-06 En la vida perfectamente organizada de Rafael, no había lugar para el romance El primer encuentro de Libby Marchant con el hombre que se convertiría en su jefe acabó con un accidente de coche. La imprevisible y atractiva Libby desquiciaba a Rafael. Afortunadamente, era su empleada y podría mantenerla a distancia. Al menos, ése era el plan. Pero, muy pronto, su regla personal de no mezclar el trabajo con el placer iba a resultar seriamente alterada. Y lo mismo su primera intención de limitar su relación a un plano puramente sexual...

French Warships in the Age of Steam 1859–1914 Stephen S Roberts, 2021-10-31 In 1859 the French navy was at a high point, having fought alongside the British in the Crimean War and developed a formidable fleet of fast wooden-hulled steam ships of the line. But in that very year the world's navies had to start over again when French naval architect Dupuy de Lôme introduced the ironclad battleship. The French navy then went through three tumultuous phases. In the 1860s and 1870s it focused on building a new traditionally-structured fleet in which wooden-hulled battleships gave way to iron and steel ships with massive guns and armour. In the 1880s and 1890s this effort was disrupted by a vigorous contest between battleship sailors and advocates of fast steel cruisers and small torpedo craft, leaving France by the end of the 1890s with few new battleships (none as large as the best foreign ships) but some two hundred torpedo boats. The Fashoda crisis in 1898 revealed the weakness of the French navy and between 1900 and 1914 the French focused on building a strong battle fleet. In 1914 this fleet remained well behind those of Britain and Germany in numbers, but taken individually French warships remained among the best in the world. This book is the first comprehensive listing in English of the over 1400 warships that were added to the official French navy fleet list between 1 January 1859 and World War I. It includes everything from the largest battleships to a small armoured gunboat that looked like a floating egg. The ships are listed in three separate parts to keep contemporary ships together and then by ship type and class. For each class the book provides a design history explaining why the ships were built, substantial technical characteristics for the ships as completed and after major reconstructions, and selected career milestones including the ultimate fate of each ship. Like its predecessors written jointly with Rif Winfield, French Warships in the Age of Sail 1626-1786 and French Warships in the Age of Sail 1786-1861, with which it forms the third in a trilogy, it provides a complete picture of the overall development of French warships over a period of almost three centuries.

Fighting Slavery in the Caribbean Luis Martinez-

Fernandez,2015-03-04 This volume presents a social history of life in mid-19th-century Cuba as experienced by George Backhouse (and his wife, Grace), who served on the British Havana Mixed Commission for the Suppression of the Slave Trade. Documented with extracts from the Backhouse's correspondence, diaries and other contemporary papers, Martinez-Fernandez paints a detailed picture of the Cuban slave trade, its role in the sugar industry, and the interrelated contradictions within Cuba's economy, society and politics. The Backhouse story provides additional insights into important aspects of life in the male city of Havana, social antagonisms between Britons and North Americans, interactions with European social circles, religious tension, and the reality of tropical disease. Drama is added to the narrative in the author's description of the tragic and mysterious murder of George Backhouse in August 1855, possibly the result of a slave traders' conspiracy.
