The Special Artist in American Culture Nancy Louise Gustke, 1995 Frank Hamilton Taylor represents an important, but overlooked, group of documentalists of American history - Special Artists. These were men and women who wrote and illustrated articles for the pictorial press which included Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslie's. Well known Specials like Winslow Homer and Frederic Remington have received only cursory acknowledgment of the importance of their early work for these papers. However, studying the works and lives of Special Artists, like Taylor, can give unique insights into the development of American culture. His achievements give us a better understanding of the emergence of middle-class values at the turn of the century.

Special Visions Olga S. Opfell, 1991 Remarkably varied in their output and life styles, both resolutely independent and conformist, these women painters, sculptors and graphic artists represent eight nationalities and span four centuries. They are Artemisia Gentileschi, Judith Leyster, Angelica Kauffman, Vigee Lebrun, Rosa Bonheur, Berthe Morisot, Mary Cassatt, Suzanne Valadon, Kathe Kollwitz, Paula Modersohn-Becker, Gabriele Munter, Vanessa Bell, Sonia Delaunay, Georgia O'Keeffe and Frida Kahlo. Their reputations have dipped and risen again over the years. Some were widely appreciated in their day; others attained recognition posthumously. All overcame the obstacles of social restrictions and male prejudice.

Healing with Art and Soul Kathy Luethje, 2008-12-18 This fascinating collection of essays contains a variety of perspectives about the use of expressive arts for facilitating physical and emotional healing. Each author within brings a fresh approach and unique experiences to their writing. Within these pages, you will find many ideas for the use of the arts and can learn how to engage the inner layers of the self that allow natural healing processes of the body and soul to flourish. When we fully engage an art modality, we find ourselves in a place in our consciousness that could be called 'healingspace,' where we feel ourselves whole and re-member ourselves as well. From psychic trauma to physical illness, dis-ease of many kinds may be addressed through the various techniques discussed here. The tools offered by some authors are population specific and age appropriate, while several authors have given us the philosophical underpinnings for it all. While the authors within represent the grassroots voices of this new and rapidly expanding field, several of them have developed their own methods for using the arts, and have thriving practices. Our approach is wholistic. Music, visual arts, movement, dance, and poetry are discussed as separate modalities and in combination with one another in a process or flow. The reader will engage in our experiences with these modalities as they have been lived. The complementary CD that accompanies this book will allow the listener to have a full sound experience of toning. If a rationale is needed for establishing arts programs in medical centers or other health facilities, it can be found here. The book offers tools for self development and for group facilitation. Those wanting to expand their healing practice through the use of the arts will find the book to be a faithful guide. Anyone wishing for a fuller understanding of how the arts may work to facilitate healing will find much food for thought within these pages.

Wah Ming Chang Gail Blasser Riley, 1995 The interesting life of this Chinese-American artist and master of special effects is brought into wonderful focus through live interviews and descriptions of his work. The reader is told of Chang's life, beginning when he was an eight-year-old artist in San Francisco, his bout with polio, his help with such designs as Barbie and models for the Star Trek T.V. show, and his eventual involvement with the environment.
