Continuing Education in Colleges and Universities: Challenges and Opportunities Ronald White, Frank DiSilvestro,2013-12-31 These are times of great opportunity and challenge for continuing education (CE) programs in colleges and universities. While lifelong learning remains central to CE's mission, means of promoting and delivering adult education programs through distance and online learning are undergoing tremendous technological transformation. Within institutions, CE units are increasingly collaborating with academic departments. In addition, demographic shifts have resulted in new audiences and types of programs offered, both credit and noncredit. Schools are pressured to increase their participation in economic development. All these changes carry administrative considerations. This volume suggests perspective and solutions for the challenges that must be successfully confronted by today's CE programs and the professionals who develop them. This is the 140th volume of this Jossey-Bass series. Noted for its depth of coverage, it explores issues of common interest to instructors, administrators, counselors, and policymakers in a broad range of adult and continuing education settings, such as colleges and universities, extension programs, businesses, libraries, and museums.

Providing Culturally Relevant Adult Education: A Challenge for the Twenty-First Century Talmadge C. Guy,1999-12-08 Traditional adult learning theory has not accounted for the many cultural differences manifested in adult education programs and in ethnic and racial communities. This issue of New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education offers more inclusive theories that focus on how learners construct meaning in a social and cultural context. The volume identifies ways that adult educators can work more effectively with racially, ethnically, and linguistically marginalized learners, and explores how adult education can be an effective tool for empowering marginalized learners to take control of their circumstances. The authors--who share the same cultural backgrounds as the populations they serve--provide ideas for enhancing the learning experiences of African Americans, Hispanic Americans, and Native Americans in adult education programs. This is the 82nd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education.

Celebrated artist Jeffrey Brown's delightful illustrations give classic Star Wars® moments a fresh twist, presenting the trials and joys of parenting through the lens of a galaxy far, far away. The photos show the current (at the time the photo was taken) condition of each subject. But, they can't answer the question of how each item ended up where it did. How did the Nash end up parked where it sat, and with a bullet hole in the windshield? How did the boat end up in the middle of a large field with no water nearby? When did their owners walk away and leave them to languish in their abandoned locations? It's a mystery.
