Fort Drum Robert E. Brennan, Jeannie I. Brennan, 2002 Northern New York State has boasted a prominent military presence since the War of 1812. Beginning in 1816 with the establishment of Fort Drum's predecessor, Madison Barracks, troops have trained there throughout the summer months and the harsh winters. Today, Fort Drum is the largest military facility in the northeastern United States, home to the 10th Mountain Division, a tactical unit deployed on missions around the world. Beginning with the history of Madison Barracks, Fort Drum depicts its birth as Pine Plains, a ten-thousand-acre training area, and its continued evolution into a military asset. By 1908, soldiers from Madison Barracks began summer maneuvers at Pine Plains under the command of Brig. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, son of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. Historic images in Fort Drum show these training camps and what are known today as the greatest military maneuvers in peacetime history during 1935. Today, Fort Drum supports the training of almost eighty thousand troops annually. This striking volume presents the military history of Fort Drum and the missions it continues to support in defense of the United States.

American Defenses of Corregidor and Manila Bay 1898-1945 Mark Berhow, Terrance McGovern, 2012-09-20 The Philippines were declared an American Territory on January 4, 1899, and fortification construction soon began on the islands in the mouth of Manila Bay. Among the sites built were Fort Mills (Corregidor), Fort Frank, and the formidable concrete battleship of Fort Drum. The defenses suffered constant Japanese bombardment during World War II, leading to the surrender of American forces. In 1945 the forts were manned by Japanese soldiers determined to hold out to the bitter end. This title details the fortifications of this key strategic location, and considers both their effectiveness and historical importance.

Geology and Paleontology of the Fort Drum Crystal Mine, Okeechobee County, Florida Edward J. Petuch, Mardie Drolshagen, 2004 The Fort Drum Mine, also known as the Rucks Pit or Fort Drum Crystal Mine, was first recognized as a geologically and scientifically important locality as far back as the early 1990's. During that time, Dr. Thomas M. Scott, Assistant Florida State Geologist, discovered the presence of calcite spar geodes within a gray sandy limestone in the old Rucks pit (now the large recreational lake adjacent to the mine campground). Besides the presence of the calcite geodes, the mine was of special interest to scientists in that it was continuously pumped, allowing for in situ collecting of fossil specimens and for direct study of the exposed geological formations. The calcite geodes were also of special interest, as they had formed as large aggregations of dogtooth spar growing inside fossilized clams (bivalve mollusks) and whelks (gastropod mollusks). As far as is known, this type of dogtooth spar geode is unique to the Fort Drum Mine. Dr. Scott also noted the presence of thick fossil shell beds, and observed that they were especially well-preserved and contained a large number of species. I was first brought to the mine in 1993, primarily to examine the fossil shells and to determine which formations were present within the quarry. To my surprise, I found that many of the fossil shells had never been collected before and were new to science. Since 1994, I have named 10 new species from the Rucks Pit and these are illustrated on the plates at the back of this book. Many more new species are being discovered on a regular basis as the quarry is being deepened and widened. Exposing over 3 million years of Florida's history, the Fort Drum Crystal Mine continues to be one of the most important geological, paleontological, and educational resources in central Florida. This book was written to serve as a field guide to the many geological treasures that are present within the mine. Hopefully, it will also give insight into the ancient worlds that once covered Okeechobee County and southern Florida.--p. 1.

Final Report for Wetland Mitigation at Fort Drum, New York Charles Andrew Cole, 1995

Watertown Chuck Booth, 2019-02-18 The weapons of war that inflict debilitating wounds upon the men and women who fight with it have much greater range than the target they are aimed at. When men and women deploy to a war-torn theater, they do so with the prayers and fears of loved ones. When they return broken and dismembered, another battle begins as loved ones adjust, cope, and grieve. The parents, the unsung victims of the war, cry out, "Look what they did to my baby!" Logan was no stranger to the wages of war, but he wasn't prepared for what he found in the Adirondack Mountains, only a few miles south of Fort Drum.

Home Fires Burning Karen Houppert, 2007-12-18 As taps echoes across the cookie-cutter housing areas of upstate New York's Fort Drum, the wives turn on the evening news, both hoping for and dreading word of their husbands overseas. It's a ritual played out on military bases across the nation as the waiting wives of Karen Houppert's extraordinary new book endure a long, lonely, and difficult year with their husbands far from home. Houppert, a prize winning journalist, spent a year among these women, joining them as they had babies, raised families, ran Cub Scout troops, coached soccer--and went to funerals. The waiting wives include Lauren, twenty-six, whose Navy SEAL husband was killed in Afghanistan; Heidi, peace activist and Army wife whose life is a daily struggle with her conscience; Crystal, a nineteen-year-old raising two babies on a shoestring while her husband fights in the Middle East; Tabitha, who becomes the alleged victim of murderous domestic violence at the hands of her Special Operations boyfriend; and Danette, once an Army brat and now a devoted Air Force wife, who teaches, raises two teens, and fills her days with endless volunteer work. Houppert shows that these women make some of the same sacrifices of their personal liberties as their husbands do and yet garner none of the respect accorded their spouses. Today, these military wives find themselves torn between an entrenched tradition that would keep them in a Leave It to Beaver family ideal and a modern social climate suggesting that women are entitled to more--a career of their own, self-determination, and a true parenting partner. Meanwhile, the military concocts family-friendly policies and spends millions on new programs designed to appease military wives--and to maintain them as staunch supporters who will encourage their husbands' reenlistment. The Army likes to say that it "recruits soldiers, but retains families." And indeed, the future of the all-volunteer force hinges on the success of this mission. Though Army brass speak glowingly of the "Army Family Team," this team is often deeply divided over strategy--and even goals. A gritty, behind-the-scenes look at the tour of duty from the domestic front, Home Fires Burning provides a fascinating, fresh look at an enormous American institution and the families that live in its shadow.

Assessment of DoD Wounded Warrior Matters - Form Drum Department Defense, 2013-01-30 According to the Army's Warrior Transition Command (WTC), there are approximately 10,000 Warriors in Transition in the Army WTUs. Close to 1,000 were wounded in combat, approximately 2,100 were injured or became sick and were treated while deployed in Southwest Asia, approximately 2,000 recently returned from a deployment prior to entry into a WTU but were not treated during the deployment, and approximately 4,900 had never been deployed. The broad objective of this ongoing assessment is to determine whether the DoD programs for the care, management, and transition of recovering Service members wounded during deployment in Operation Iraqi Freedom or Operation Enduring Freedom were managed effectively and efficiently. Our specific objectives were to evaluate the missions, the policies, and processes of: Military units, beginning with the Army and Marine Corps, established to support the recovery of Service members and their transition to duty status (Active or Reserve Components) or to civilian life; and DoD programs for Service members affected with Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). This is the second of multiple assessments that will be conducted at Army and Marine Corps Warrior transition units. To obtain unbiased data, not unduly reflecting the views of either the supporters or detractors of the program, we used a two-pronged approach to select our respondents. First, we determined how many Service members were required to be interviewed, then we applied a simple random sample approach to determine the Service members we should interview, as described in Appendix A. We subsequently performed interviews with Army wounded, ill, and injured personnel, to include 96 individual interviews with Soldiers and 26 additional Soldiers in 5 group interviews. Second, we interviewed all available members of the key groups at each site responsible for the Warriors' care. Specifically, we conducted meetings and interviews during our 2-week visit at Fort Drum that included unit commanders, staff officers, and Warrior Transition Battalion (WTB) military staff, as well as civilian staff and contractors. A list of the meetings conducted at the Fort Drum Medical Department Activity (MEDDAC) and the 3rd Battalion, 85th Mountain Infantry Regiment, which is the Fort Drum WTB, is shown in Appendix A, along with the scope, methodology, and acronyms of this assessment. The prior coverage of this subject area is discussed in Appendix B. The observations and corresponding recommendations in this report focus on what we learned at Fort Drum. In addition, noteworthy practices that may have application at other Warrior Transition Units (WTUs) are also described. Additional reports and/or assessments may be subsequently performed by the DoD Office of the Inspector General on DoD Wounded Warrior matters or other related issues as they are identified. Any specific issues, concerns, and challenges that we identified at Fort Drum that may have to be addressed in future assessments and/or reports are discussed in Appendix C.

None Left Behind Charles W. Sasser, 2010-10-26 Profiles the 10th Mountain Division and their efforts to pacify The Triangle of Death, a region of particular terrorist violence south of Baghdad, while sharing the daring 2007 attempt to rescue three kidnapped soldiers.
