Shoo Rayner

Viking Longships Andrea Hopkins, Ph.D.,2001-12-15 Viking longships were wonders of shipbuilding.

Viking Longship Keith Durham,2002-02-25 Viking longships evolved from one-man canoes of the Scandinavian Stone Age, through wood-built-ships of c. 200 BC into the recognisable longboats of the 4th century AD. From this point, the Viking Longship developed into the pre-eminent raider and trader in the North Sea and Baltic, venturing as far afield as the Mediterranean, North Atlantic and modern-day Russia. Keith Durham uses reconstructions, original sources, translations and archaeological evidence to render a vivid picture of the vessels that dominated the seaways of Scandinavia, founded colonies on Iceland, Greenland and the New World and terrorised the coastlines of northern Europe. Also covered are Norman vessels, including the invasion fleet of William the Conqueror.

It promises to be a lovely trip together after being cooped up at home during the recent pandemic. Vaccinated and packed, they are ready to tour the South of France, free from any worry about dangerous microbes. At least, that's what they think. Someone else aboard their ship has other ideas, including murder, and something worse than murder. What could be worse than murder? Read the story to find out, and enjoy Arielle's photographs.

The first results of this extraordinary voyage on the track of the Vikings are now available. This volume gives an account of the methodological considerations behind a trial voyage as experimental archaeology. The course of the voyage is mapped out historically, based on the weather conditions and the waters navigated. The book provides a fascinating insight into the issues involved in the reconstruction of the ship's steering system, a description of life on board and the experiences of handling a longship, including its travel speed and sailing capabilities.

She is the last of her kind to navigate across the North Atlantic. In 1893 she sailed alone from Norway to Chicago, crewed by 12 brave men, bent on a mission to prove that the Norse - not Columbus - were the first Europeans to find and settle the Americas. She attracted thousands at the World's Columbian Exhibition, the Chicago World's Fair of 1893. She has sailed the Mississippi River to New Orleans. She has spent decades docked near what is now Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry, has been sheltered under a wooden structure in the city's Lincoln Park. Today, she rests in Good Templar Park, Geneva, under a canopy. The state of Illinois has listed her as one of the state's 10 most endangered landmarks. But she is protected by Friends of the Viking Ship, an organization dedicated to her preservation. Hundreds see her every year, and learn about her construction, her adventures, and the ongoing efforts to preserve her. Her name is Viking.
