Condition Assessment and Coating Recommendations for Aircraft Maintenance Hangars ,1999 The Users Guide presents a systematic approach to assessing the condition of aircraft maintenance hangar floors prior to specifying one of three coating systems: (1) Thin film coating system (16 mils: 1 mil = 0.001), (2) Thick film coating system (250 mils), and (3) Overcoating sound coating systems. Coating specifications based upon the above coating systems are presented in the Naval Facilities Engineering Service Center's (NFESC) Special Publication titled Hangar Floor Coating Specifications: Thin Film, Thick Film, and Overcoating Sound Coating Systems (SP-2057-SHR). By assessing the condition of hangar floor surfaces, coating failures resulting from the following practices should decrease: (1) Overcoating unsound coating systems, (2) Coating concrete with low surface strength, (3) Coating concrete with high levels of hydrocarbon contamination (oils, fuels, skydrol), and (4) Coating concrete with a high rate of moisture vapor emission.

Aviation Maintenance Management Frank H. King,1986 This is a practical approach to, and comprehensive examination of, the problems that face the aviation supervisor. The first chapter discusses the impact of population and geographic changes on the regulation of the airline industry. Chapter 2 deals with "The Federal Aviation Administration," Chapter 3 with "Regulatory Requirements," and Chapter 4 with "Organizational Structures." Chapter 5, "Management Responsibilities," explores such practical aspects as directing programs, leadership, providing motivation and incentives, and communication. Chapter 6, "Aviation Maintenance Procedures"—Chapter 7, "Applications of Aviation Maintenance Concepts"—and Chapter 8, "Budgeting, Cost Controls, and Cost Reduction"—also explore the daily problems of aviation supervision in practical terms. Chapter 9, "Training and Professional Development in Aviation Maintenance," contains a discussion of certified aviation maintenance technical schools. Chapter 10 is an in-depth assessment of "Safety and Maintenance." Discussed here are safety in the maintenance hangar and on the ramp, fueling aircraft, electrical safety, radiation concerns, and building requirements. Chapter 11, "Electronic Data Processing," covers the computer and applications of received data. Chapter 12, "Aviation Maintenance Management Problem Areas," deals with matters ranging from parts ordering to administrative concerns. The final chapter is a "Forecast and Summary."

Recirculating Ventilation System in an Integrated Maintenance Hangar Supporting B-1B and KC-135 Aircraft ,2001

During 1998 the Corps of Engineers (CoE) built an integrated maintenance hangar (Building 198) to support maintenance of B-1B and KC-135 aircraft at Mountain Home Air Force Base (MHAFB). Recirculation of 80% of the exhaust air was included in the design as an energy conservation measure, and carbon adsorption was applied to the exhaust stream to capture VOCs. Routine Industrial Hygiene exposure sampling for chromate and for isocyanates was conducted by MHAFB staff during application of prime and top coats, respectively, and all measurements were below the respective method detection limits. However, although the CoE design delivered provided strong air movement in most areas inside the hangar, the ventilation field included many regions of intense turbulence, in which the application of paint is difficult. Some amelioration of turbulence was accomplished by adjustment of baffles and vents at the exits from the ventilation ducts, and the hangar is now in routine use, setting a concrete precedent for operating in Recirculating ventilation mode under the de minimis violation defined by OSHA and applied to 29 CFR 1910.107 (d) (9). MHAFB is planning an eventual hangar modification project to relocate the ventilation intakes and exhaust, to even out the airflow pattern.
