Tapirs Daniel M. Brooks, Richard E. Bodmer, Sharon Matola, 1997 Descended from a long and ancient lineage, tapirs are important tropical forest seed dispersers. However, today, all species of tapirs are threatened to various degrees by habitat destruction and hunting. This action plan was written with wildlife biologists, ecologists, administrators, educators and local conservation officials in mind and is aimed at those countries with tapir populations. It provides a brief natural history of each species and its objective is to aid in their conservation by catalyzing conservation action. In addition, it is hoped that the contents of the plan will stimulate further research into this fascinating group of animals.

Tapoo the Tapir Philip Lim, 2020-06-14 As a homeschooling family with 2 daughters, we are always creating new things for learning and play. Writing children stories and creating learning aids is our new passion, and we are especially keen on sharing with children more about nature and lesser known wild animals. In this book, we have chosen to write about the Malayan Tapir. I have spotted a Malayan Tapir only once, in a forest of Malaysia. It stayed very calm, kept chomping on leaves and did not bother too much with me. It was a very memorable moment for me. What an interesting animal which decided to have just a half white and half black appearance. Meet Tapoo the Tapir and learn how she lives with her baby in a forest. This is part of a series of 6 stories about wild animals in Asia. Continue on the adventure with the other books we have created for young children age 0 to 4. We can also customize this book to include your child's name, with no extra charge. There is also a
