

Space Shuttle OV-105 Subnominal Bond Investigation ,2005 During summer 2003, structures work along the wing/fuselage mate rivet line on NASA's Space Shuttle OV-105 (Endeavour) required thermal tile removal. The tiles were removed nondestructively, so they could be reused, by skiving through the Strain Isolator Pad (SIP) from an adjacent tile cavity. While removing the remaining SIP from the tile, technicians noted the SIP and Room Temperature Vulcanizing (RTV) was peeling adhesively from the Inner Mold Line (IML) on the tile surface. This paper presents findings that eliminate many possible causes of the subnominal adhesive bond, and suggests that the most likely cause of the adhesive bond was the use of brushes contaminated with Krylon 1201 Spray Starch or MS-143 Mold Release Agent. The research was accomplished by analyzing historical NASA documents, results of bond verification tests, peel tests, contamination tests and fabrication process anomaly tests.

Space Shuttle Endeavour, The Stephen Hayward Silberkraus,2014 Born out of tragedy and like none of her predecessors, over the course of her 25 missions and her 19-year career, this new orbiter would perform many vital and historic missions for humanity. Inspiring pride and admiration, Endeavour would fix the Hubble Space Telescope, begin construction of the International Space Station (ISS), and perform several Spacelab missions, never failing to expand man's knowledge of space. Endeavour's story was not to end with 25 missions in space but with one final mission, mission 26, her move from Florida to her new home in California. Atop the Shuttle Carrier Aircraft, Endeavour was flown piggyback across the United States for her final victory lap. Welcomed and waved along by millions of admirers, she was carried through the streets of Los Angeles to her final destination, the California Science Center in Downtown Los Angeles.

Spacelab Payloads Michael E. Haddad,David J. Shayler,2022-01-22 Spacelab was a reusable laboratory facility that was flown on the Space Shuttle from 1983 to 1998. Completing 22 major missions and contributing to many other NASA goals, Spacelab stands as one of the Shuttle program's most resounding successes. The system comprised multiple components, including a pressurized laboratory module, unpressurized carrier pallets and other related hardware, all housed in the Shuttle's Payload Bay and crew compartment. But how did all those varied components actually come together? The answer is the little-known "Level-IV", a team of managers and engineers who molded separate elements of hardware into cohesive and safe payloads. Without the dedication and drive of the Level-IV team, the huge successes of the Spacelab missions would not have been achieved. This is their story. You will learn herein how Level-IV was formed, who was involved, and the accomplishments, setbacks and problems faced along the way, in a story that blends both the professional and personal sides of Level-IV operations and its legacy. Upon reading this book, you will gain a new appreciation for this crucial team and understand what is meant when you hear the term "Level-IV".
