The Day My Kisses Tasted Like Disorder Emmanuella Hristova,2022-08-28
Emmanuella's debut poetry collection documents the birth and death of a relationship, and the death of her sister. Each poem is an emotional time-stamp that plunges the reader into the depths of the author's feelings as they burgeon and wane. The book reads like a diary and chronicles the boundaries of the things that we all feel: love, heartache, and pain that gives way to hope. Now printed in full-color, each page features unique digital art unseen in the eBook version.

The Poems and Plays of William Vaughn Moody William Vaughn Moody, John Matthews Manly,1912 A collection of drama and poetry by William Vaughn Moody, an early twentieth-century dramatist.

Triggers Adeleke Adesuyi,2022-10-31 A collection of a mixed match of poetry imploring the subject of love, mystics, and other musings. There is the make what you wish element at the core of the writing style, however, it is easy to follow and even sing along! Divided into ten chapters introduced by a short reflection that captures the mood and overall, these of the chapter. Triggers so-called because of the impulsiveness of the writer's inspiration. The sun, the moon, and the occasional brush with the mundane set off sparks in this writer's mind. The result is almost a hundred poems many written whole on the road! Written to be explored and enjoyed!

Poems of James Montgomery James Montgomery,1860

Passaic, a Group of Poems Touching that River Thomas Ward,1842

Poems Dora Greenwell,1867

Gems from Gwen Gwendolyn Wood Tisdale,2016-02-12 I have been writing since 1984. My strong feelings for mankind, our young especially, and the evil that confront us today, created within me the inspiration to write poetry. I use the magic of words to captivate, inspire, activate, and stimulate the thought process. Through poetry I am able to release my inner feelings and emotions and by sharing, create a stimulus that arouses sensitivity in the listener/reader. I pray you will enjoy these words of wisdom from the Heavenly Father, penned by His servant. Gwendolyn Wood-Tisdale

Poems and Plays (Classic Reprint) Harry Lorenzo Chapin,2018-01-31 Excerpt from Poems and Plays It is quite necessary for me to mention in the preface of this volume that the play forsaken has been adapted from excerpts of Spanish literature. I have endeavored to Anglicize the story by changing the names of the characters and have also put it in the form of a Drama, not with the intention of visualizing the characters of the plot on the stage, but for quiet perusal at home. Its prolixity compels me to resort to the printer's art instead of the producer's profession. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. [corset] Beatriz Hierro Lopes, 2023-04-23 Contra las sujeciones textuales y simbólicas de la poesía, Beatriz Hierro Lopes (Oporto, 1985) engendra [corset]. Aquí habla una voz "inquieta, radioactiva y frecuentemente indecisa" que se planta desde un cuerpo al que todo lo atraviesa; un cuerpo que se expande y es ciudad, invierno, lavandas, miedo y lengua: la lengua músculo, la lengua que habla, la lengua portuguesa cargada de historia que es ruptura. Una escritura que desde su sintaxis se manifiesta en disputa con la norma y que desde su imaginario reclama el derecho a la autonomía poética. [corset] nos abre la puerta a una lectura de belleza indiscutible tanto por su arquitectura formal como por el constante devenir de una subjetividad que arde a cada línea. Andrea Rivas

Sphinx Liliane Giraudon, 2023 Liliane Giraudon's SPHINX practically drips with the blood of its enemies. It's delicately marbled, like good meat. One of experimental French writing's most powerful and most undersung figures, Giraudon was born in Marseille in 1946. Working across prose and poetry--sometimes, too, between writing and drawing--Giraudon's work is difficult to pin down. Enigmatic without ever being coy, Giraudon's operational field is a mythic space, anchored in the classical past but firmly on the side of the living and our problems. A dramatization of the present, Giraudon writes in one of the poems, Not History. Lindsay Turner's translation renders perfectly the excruciating intimacy of these hypnagogic, fabular poems. Liliane Giraudon's SPHINX is a hybrid 'monster' (my favourite kind of polymorph), hurtling herself off the cliff of 'the fierce moment' (the tragic Greeks in tow) to enact a visceral and protean transposition: between a mythic and a present time, between the personal and the political, between languages and materialities. She (poet, translator, persona, myth) shimmies into and out of the structure of Greek tragedy, flirting with narrative and devouring raw a palimpsestic languagebeing, posing her riddles and sharpening her wit through Lindsay Turner's deft translation. Frank and uncompromising, she demands to be heard and leaves you wanting more.--Oana Avasilichioaei Giradoun and Turner speak with precision and urgency, and yet we slow down to marvel at the exquisite mystery presented before us. As one of the poems posits, ghosts 'exact, much more than exist.' The poems in this volume are ghosts, which is to say they imply incidents from long ago--myths--that linger unresolved in the inherited parts of our minds. She who may be the Sphinx waits; though she has shown us the way out, we long to stay, captives of her private language.--Jae Kim The Sphinx like the poet is 'no more than a horrible singer/doing her mystery.' And the mystery always goes back to the word: 'The more you look at a word closely/the more it looks at you from far off.' Giraudon writes, 'A word is a form' the way that myths, narratives, burning mouths, 'incessant wars,' and the names of types of cigarettes become the places where we live.--Eléna Rivera Poetry.

All About Love Pat Morrell-Donnelly, 2023-07-28 "All About Love" is Pat Morrell-Donnelly's ninth book to publish. It contains two hundred twenty poems on different subjects. Each poem contains the word "love." Many are motivational and inspirational type poems. Some tell about life and about life's struggles and challenges that Pat has experienced. They tell about the love of God, Agape love, love of parents, love of nature, love of country, and different kinds of love. Most have a positive ending. Reading the poems will take one away a bit from the vicissitudes of life. Pat believes she has been given a gift from God that puts these poems in her mind. Perhaps some of the thoughts also come from being on this earth ninety four years. Many of the poems were written in the nineteen eighties and nineteen nineties and all through the years that followed. They portray some of the difficulties Pat experienced through out her life. The poems tell about different hardships, problems, losses and heartbreaks Pat suffered. Many times she is awakened in the night with thoughts going round in her head. She jots down or scribbles the thoughts on a pad next to her bed and deciphers the scribbling the following morning. She has also written many poems while under the hair dryer. The book also contains a short story "The Faded Photograph." It is a great love story Pat wrote about a special couple she knew. The lady was originally from England. A second short story called "Unfinished" is about her mother who was killed by a drunk driver when her mother was forty five years of age. A beautiful life snuffed out prematurely. Pat worked all her life since age fourteen. She "made it" as the saying goes, and then "lost it all." She was very successful at one point, but from wrong choices and decisions she lost all the material possessions she had attained over her lifetime. Pat realizes her poems are not everyone's "cup of tea." She appreciates that many have purchased her books and say they love her poems. They speak to just what that person needs at the time. Their spirit is lifted. She shares her life's experiences through her poetry. If Pat's poems can offer a bit of pleasure to any individual then the effort to put this book together and get it published will have been worth it all.
