Mel Williams

Dassault Rafale édéric Lert,2017-10-11 Designed in the mid-1980s, the Dassault Aviation Rafale, entered service in 2004 for the Navy and in 2006 for the Air Force, the divergent needs having forced France to dissociate the European partners provided early in the project (Germany, UK, Spain and Italy). Flagship of French aviation, the Rafale has incomparable advantages: versatility, stealth, versatility or multi-role capability. Despite the capabilities. it remained in the shadows for years in terms of international export. Recent geopolitical developments are set to change the game and Rafale finally recorded its first commercial success with orders from Qatar, Egypt and perhaps India. This book, illustrated with about 200 photos and thirty profiles in color, will address the three versions of the aircraft: the Rafale C (single seat aircraft for the Air Force), the Rafale M (designed by the Navy to integrate with carrier) and Rafale B (Two-seater).

RAFALE : EVERYTHING YOU WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT RAFALE ?BUT DIDN'T KNOW HOW TO FIND OUT Amit Bagaria,2019-02-12 To replace 244 aged MiG-21 fighters of IAF, a case to procure 126 Mirage-2000 jets was initiated in 2000. After a 7-year delay, in August 2007, the UPA government invited bids for 126 jets. Six bidders submitted proposals. In January 2012, UPA government announced that Dassault's Rafale had won. Dassault was to build 18 jets in France, with 108 to be produced by HAL in India. Negotiations remained incomplete 28 months after Rafale was chosen, due to disputes on costs and terms, explained in detail. When India renegotiated with Dassault, by January 2014, the deal cost would become ₹1669 crores by when the first jets were to be delivered. In five different speeches or tweets, Rahul Gandhi quoted figures of ₹520 crores, ₹526 crores, ₹540 crores, ₹570 crores and ₹700 crores per jet as the UPA's negotiated price. Thus, there was no Rafale deal signed under UPA. For 10 years, UPA governments could not finalise a deal to buy crucial firepower for India's national security. Less than two months after Modi became PM, negotiations were held between India and France. In April 2015, just 10½ months after coming to power, during a visit to France, Modi announced a "government-to-government deal" to acquire 36 Rafales in "fly-away condition". The Agreement was signed in September 2016. Deliveries would begin in September 2019 and be completed by April 2022. The negotiated cost per Rafale jet was ₹1623 crores. Thus, Modi got the Rafales cheaper than MMS. India got many other additional terms and benefits, explained in great detail. 14 months after the deal was signed, Gandhi started calling it a scam. In different tweets, he alleged a scam of ₹58,000 crores (21 Feb. 2018), ₹36,000 crores (16 Mar. 2018), ₹40,000 crores (19 Mar. 2018) and ₹130,000 crores (22 Sep. 2018). When the deal itself is for ₹58,428 crores, how can the scam be ₹58,000 or ₹130,000 crores? In an Inter-Government deal with no middleman, how can bribes be paid? Who pays whom? To the best of my knowledge, this is the first book on the much-talked-about Rafale deal, and should put all controversies to rest once and for all.

Dassault Rafale Hugh Harkins,2020-11-06 The Dassault Rafale, designed to replace a number of legacy aircraft types in French Air Force and Naval aviation service, is a 4th+/4th++ generation omnirole combat aircraft, which emerged from the French ACX (Avion de Combat Experimental) program of the early 1980's. This progressed after France withdrew from the consortium of European partner nations, which went on to develop the Eurofighter Typhoon. The Rafale design is centred on a comprehensive multi-sensor avionics suite, embracing the concept of sensor fusion to enhance overall mission effectiveness. The integral internal and external sensors and comprehensive array of precision guided weapons enable Rafale to conduct a plethora of operational missions, ranging from air defence, air to surface strike, including nuclear stand-off strike and maritime surface strike, to reconnaissance intelligence gathering. The volume covers the evolution of the Rafale concept from the early AXC studies that led to the Rafale A technology demonstrator through the succession of serial produced Rafale Standards built or planned - F1 to F5. All technical and historical information regarding the aircraft, systems and weapons, have been furnished by the respective designers/developers, as has much of the graphic material, with technical and graphic input from other entities, such as the French Délégué Général pour l'armement and respective operators. Certain segments of updated text, where pertinent, are taken from the volumes 'Dassault Rafale, the Gallic Squall' (Harkins, 2004) and 'Eurofighter Typhoon, Storm over Europe' (Harkins, 2013).

The Gray Threat Mark A. Lorell,1995 Three new European fighters will probably be highly competitive with existing U.S. fighters and be developed, procured, and sold outside of Europe. The gray threats should be considered real.

The Use of Prototypes in Selected Foreign Fighter Aircraft Development Programs Mark A. Lorell, Donna Kim Hoffman, 1989 This report surveys and compares the approaches to prototyping adopted by four countries--Great Britain, France, Israel, and Sweden--during the development of similar new fighter/attack aircraft. It is based primarily on information gathered during interviews and briefings conducted in 1987 with senior government and industry officials of those countries. Basic fighter airframe development still carries sufficient risks and uncertainties to warrant the manufacture and flight testing of an austere airframe prototype before full-scale development (FSD) is undertaken. However, avionics development and integration are becoming areas of increasingly high technological complexity, uncertainty, and risk. Effective development and adequate testing and integration may be possible only with the help of sophisticated avionics ground labs and with fully missionized prototypes that are essentially pre-production FSD engineering test articles. The report concludes that a combination of both pre-FSD austere prototyping and missionized prototyping may be required to meet the challenges arising in the acquisition environment of the late 1980s.

Dassault Rafale Babak Taghvaei, 2023-09-30 Completely designed, developed and manufactured in France, the Rafale multirole fighter jet has turned into one of the most successful Dassault products in the market of 4th Generation multirole fighter jets. In addition to the 128 examples currently in service with the French Air and Space Force and Navy Aviation, 225 other Rafales were sold to Croatia, Egypt, Greece, India, UAE and Qatar. For years, French Navy Aviation and the Air and Space Force have been the two main operators of the multirole combat aircraft. The first had its first Navy variant, the Rafale M, put into operation in 2002 while the latter began operating its first Rafale Bs in 2006. Since that, they both have used these aircraft in combat during various anti-terrorist operations in Afghanistan, Libya, Mali, Chad, Syria and Iraq. In addition to that, their aircraft were used to bolster defense of NATO's eastern borders during the recent war in Ukraine.

Dassault Rafale Frédéric Lert, 2017-09-08 Le Rafale est déjà un vétéran ! Entré en service en 2001 avec l'Aéronavale, le dernier né de Dassault Aviation a été déclaré opérationnel avec l'armée de l'Air cinq ans plus tard. Depuis cette époque, l'avion n'a cessé d'être engagé au combat, avec un très grand succès. Afghanistan, Libye, Mali, Tchad, Syrie, Irak... la liste des engagements est très longue et ne semble pas vouloir s'arrêter. Sous toutes les latitudes, en mer ou à terre, le Rafale a fait la preuve de la justesse de ses choix techniques et de l'excellence de ses équipements. Avec cet avion, c'est le vent d'une révolution douce qui a soufflé sur les armées françaises. Capacité d'emport, endurance, puissance, précision, polyvalence, sécurité et même confort... : quel que soit l'angle sous lequel on le scrute, le Rafale est synonyme de progrès. Une situation qui est à présent parfaitement comprise à l'étranger ou l'avion 100 % français enchaîne désormais les succès commerciaux. Dans le sillage de la glorieuse famille des Mirage, le Rafale écrit à son tour les premiers chapitres de sa propre épopée.
