The Media in the Movies Larry Langman,2015-07-11 Cynical news hounds, grumbling editors, snooping television newscasters, inquisitive foreign correspondents, probing newsreel cameramen, and a host of others--all can be found in this reference work to Hollywood's version of journalism: from the early one-reelers to modern fare, over a thousand silent and sound films can be found. Each entry includes title, date of release, distributor, director, screenwriter, and major cast members. These credits are followed by a brief plot summary and analysis, cross-references and other information. The book is arranged alphabetically, and includes a preface, introduction, bibliography, a list of abbreviations, appendices, and an index of names. The detailed introduction covers an historical survey of the topic, with numerous film examples. The work also includes a selection of stills from various films.

Reunion and Reaction C. Vann Woodward,1991-03-28 Between the era of America's landmark antebellum compromises and that of the Compromise of 1877, a war had intervened, destroying the integrity of the Southern system but failing to determine the New South's relation to the Union. While it did not restore the old order in the South, or restore the South to parity with the Union, it did lay down the political foundations for reunion, bring Reconstruction to an end, and shape the future of four million freedmen. Originally published in 1951, this classic work by one of America's foremost experts on Southern history presents an important new interpretation of the Compromise, forcing historians to revise previous attitudes towards the Reconstruction period, the history of the Republican party, and the realignment of forces that fought the Civil War. Because much of the negotiating occurred in secrecy, historians have known less about this Compromise than others before it. Now reissued with a new introduction by Woodward, Reunion and Reaction gives us the other half of the story.

Gender and Genre in Sports Documentaries Zachary Ingle,David M. Sutera,2012-12-28 In Gender and Genre in Sports Documentaries, editors Zachary Ingle and David Sutera have assembled a collection of essays that look at the various aspects of sports documentaries. Some of the essays examine questions of gender and sexuality, specifically how masculinity and homosexuality are represented in sports documentaries. Other chapters focus on the characteristics of the sports documentary, exploring how aspects of aesthetics and narrative shape the form. Besides chapters on basketball, football, baseball, boxing, tennis, and auto racing documentaries, this volume also features essays on such marginalized sports as quad rugby, pro wrestling, live action role playing (LARPing), and bodybuilding.

Deceived by Omission J. Russell-Scott,2015-07-07 Does this sound familiar, 'Your husband took something of mine, and now I'm going to take something of his'? Claire Pullano, a sculptor residing in North Lake, Ohio, finds herself thrown not only into the chaos of divorce after learning that her husband, Phil, had an affair, but she's also dealing with the possibility that a stalker has entered her life. Colton Porter, while grieving the untimely loss of his wife and son, makes an uncharacteristic decision of proposing to a woman neither his family nor friends like. When his fiancée calls off the wedding to get back with a former lover, Colton travels to North Lake in search of the wife of the man who took his fiancée. On his first visit there, he's immediately drawn to a woman he sees in Inspirations, the local art gallery. Discarding his plan, Colton decides to pursue this woman when he learns that she is the woman he was searching for. Unsure of jumping into a new relationship, Claire cautiously allows Colton in, enjoying his company and friendship. But as they grow closer, Claire's stalker becomes more fixated and his harassments change in intensity, further driving her to the solace of Colton's arms. Then, during a torrential summer storm, Claire discovers that her life has been turned into a world of deception leaving her to choose between forgiveness and resentment.
