Tire Use Survey Jack L. Harvey,F. Cecil Brenner,1970 The review summarizes the results of two surveys of the physical condition and use of passenger car tires in the continental U.S.A.Based on the compiled evidence, some conclusions are drawn concerning the physical condition, use, and abuse of passenger car tires in service during these years, particularly with regard to tread depth, inflation pressures, and degree of overloading.The various estimates of tire disablement rates are compared, and contributions of tires to motor vehicle accidents explored. The report includes several recommendations directed toward upgrading the level of quality of passenger car tires in service, and reducing their abuse, with the hope and expectation that service performance will be improved, and contributions of tires to highway accidents reduced.(Author).

Mechanical Properties of Pneumatic Tires with Special Reference to Modern Aircraft Tires Robert F. Smiley,Walter B. Horne,1960 A study is presented of most of the properties of pneumatic tires which are of interest to aircraft designers. The principal topics discussed are tire vertical-force-deflection characteristics; lateral, fore-and-aft, and torsional spring constants; footprint-area properties; relaxation lengths; rolling radius; cornering force, cornering power, self-aligning torque, and pneumatic caster for yawed rolling conditions; effects of wheel tilt; and tire radial growth under the influence of centrifugal forces. For each tire property considered, semiempirical equations are set up which take into account the major factors pertinent to the property. Whereever possible each equation is compared with the available experimental data to establish its degree of reliability.

Written from a business perspective, Scrap Tires focuses on the economics of tire recycling, providing valuable advice to individuals or companies.
