Canadian Warbirds of the Second World War - Trainers, Transports and Utility Aircraft Harold A. Skaarup, 2001-05-29 This aviation handbook is intended to provide the reader with a quick reference to identify military support aircraft flown by the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Royal Canadian Navy and the Canadian Army during the Second World War. The handbooks in this series include a general description and a photograph from the Canadian Forces Archives of at least one of the key variants or marks of each aircraft that has been in Canadian military service or used by Canadian servicemen overseas. Each aircraft is listed alphabetically by manufacturer, number and type. General details describing the aircraft's engines, service ceiling, speed, armament or weapons load are included, along with a brief description of the Canadian or allied squadron in which Canadian aircrews used the aircraft operationally. This is the fourth volume in the series. It describes the trainers, transports and utility aircraft flown by Canadians during the war. A list of museums, private aircraft collections and other locations where a number of the survivors might be found is also included. The handbook is not a definitive list of all Canadian-manufactured or operated support aircraft, but it should serve as a quick reminder for anyone with an interest in Canadian military aviation.

Flutter Clearance Tests on a Transavia PL-12/T-400 Skyfarmer A. Goldman,S.

Galea,AERONAUTICAL RESEARCH LABS MELBOURNE (Australia),1985 The Transavia T-400 Skyfarmer is the latest version of the twin-boom agricultural aircraft and incorporates several changes from the T-300 model previously tested. Changes which could affect the flutter characteristics are: a) Change of engine from 6 cylinder 300 horsepower to 8 cylinder 400 horsepower; b) Increase in length of tail booms by 750 mm; c) Increase in stub-wing span by 900 mm; d) Removal of the spring-tab from the elevators; and e) Addition of a dorsal stabilizer fin along each tail boom. A ground resonance test and subsequent flight tests were conducted on a Transavia T-400 Skyfarmer. The natural modes and frequencies of vibration were measured in the ground tests, and monitored during flight tests in which attempts were made to induce flutter. The results of these tests are presented. Keywords: Flutter analysis; Aeroelasticity; Vibration tests; Utility aircraft; Airframes. (Australia).
