And the Trees Crept In Dawn Kurtagich,2016-09-06 A stunning, terrifying novel about a house the color of blood and the two sisters who are trapped there, by The Dead House author Dawn Kurtagich When Silla and Nori arrive at their aunt's home, it's immediately clear that the blood manor is cursed. The creaking of the house and the stillness of the woods surrounding them would be enough of a sign, but there are secrets too--the questions that Silla can't ignore: Who is the beautiful boy that's appeared from the woods? Who is the man that her little sister sees, but no one else? And why does it seem that, ever since they arrived, the trees have been creeping closer? Filled with just as many twists and turns as The Dead House, and with achingly beautiful, chilling language that delivers haunting scenes, AND THE TREES CREPT IN is the perfect follow-up novel for master horror writer Dawn Kurtagich.

The Virginia Terrace Creeper Michael Dunne,2011-03-31 The Virginia Terrace Creeper tells the story of a few weeks in the life of a suburban ten-year-old boy as Halloween 1968 approaches. His anticipation of the big event is only sharpened when his older brother claims there is a boogeyman "Creeper" prowling the streets of the mysterious neighborhood to the north, Virginia Terrace. Our pint-sized hero does his best not to believe his brother's ridiculous story, but his active imagination keeps him wondering if there might not be some truth in the fantastic tale. In the end, he finds all the proof he needs as he loses his way all alone in Virginia Terrace on a moonlit Halloween night. The Virginia Terrace Creeper is sure to bring back Halloween memories for any reader who grew up trick-or-treating their way through baby-boomer America. Younger readers will find it slightly scary, funny, and fun -- an adventure tale to set the festive mood when October rolls around.

Choose Your Own Story: Sneezy Steve Saves Creeper Christmas John Diary,2017-03-24 Where are all the creepers going?When Steve notices herds of creepers walking past his tower, he has to find out what's going on. He brings with him his trusty companion Blocky (just a block of dirt) and his best friend Alex, who will do her best to keep him out of trouble. But at the end of the day, the decisions are up to YOU in this Choose Your Own Story book. Can you use all your Minecraft smarts to keep Steve safe and solve the mystery? (Or maybe you'll just see how many different ways you can blow Steve up. Spoiler alert: there's a lot of different ways...)Sneezy Steve Saves Creeper Christmas is a great read for any kid eight year of age or older. This story has all the imaginative charm of a children's classic, complete with a focus on positivity, emotions and relationships, while being packaged in a fun video game world that kids love. The interactive adventure style is great for reluctant readers. When a book is a game, it's hard to put it down! Excerpt Ahchoo!Steve woke up with a start.He didn't need an alarm. He had a nose. And it woke him up with a sneeze every morning. Steve pushed back the red blankets on his bed and swung his feet to the ground. Good morning bed! Steve said in a sing-song voice. Good morning floor! Good morning ceiling!He reached up to rub his eyes. There were two perfect little cubes of crusty, sleep sand in the corner of each eye.Good morning eye boogers! Steve said as he rubbed them out of his eyes. He stood up on the cobblestone floor and went to the wooden chest in the corner. He started putting things, one-by-one in his backpack: A diamond pickaxe.A pile of pork chops.A set of leather armour.A couple bones. Just in case I meet a wolf! Steve said. And finally, he put a single block of dirt carefully in his backpack. Good morning Blocky! he said to the block of dirt. The block of dirt said nothing.Steve closed the backpack and swung it over his shoulder. Good morning backpack!Then Steve stopped and listened for a second. Yeah, Blocky, I know that the backpack can't talk! he said, frustrated. I'm not crazy. Now stop making fun of me!The block of dirt had said nothing. And continued to say nothing. Exactly the way that blocks of dirt tend to do. Steve crossed to the window and peered out of his tower, which was sat on top of a mountain, at the world down below. Everything was white and fluffy. As if there was a sheep shoved in Steve's bedroom window. But there wasn't. That's really what the world looked like. Everything was covered in fresh snow. Everything was white. Or, at least, almost everything. Far down below, Steve saw a couple little green specks moving purposefully through the valley. They weren't zombies, they couldn't be, the sun was high in the sky. They had to be creepers. Strange, Steve said. I saw creepers going through the valley yesterday too! As he said it, another bunch of little green specks started coming down the valley. There were more than before. A lot more. Almost twenty creepers were wandering through the valley. Steve's heart stopped beating in his chest for a second. That many creepers could do a lot of damage. If they just went a little bit to the left, they'd come right towards his tower and then BOOM! They could blow the whole thing to pieces. He held his breath. But the creepers didn't come towards his tower, they just kept going until they disappeared out the north side of the valley and into the mountains beyond. Where are they going!? Steve shouted. He looked back at his backpack. I know you don't know, Blocky! But I want to find out. Steve turned from the window and jumped to the door. He flew out of it and started racing down the stairs. Start reading now to find out what happens next!

Creepers David Morrell, 2011-06-22 CREEPERS, David Morrell's gripping joyride of a thriller, depicts every harrowing second in eight hours of relentless terror. A New York Times bestseller, it received the prestigious Stoker Award from the Horror Writers Association. On a cold October night, five people gather in a run-down motel on the New Jersey shore and begin preparations to break in to the Paragon Hotel. Built in the glory days of Asbury Park by a reclusive millionaire, the magnificent structure—which foreshadowed the beauties of art-deco architecture—is now boarded up and marked for demolition. The five people are creepers, the slang term for urban explorers: city archeologists with a passion for investigating abandoned buildings and their dying secrets. On this evening, they are joined by a reporter who wants to profile them—anonymously, as this is a highly illegal activity—for a New York Times article. Frank Balenger isn't looking for just a story, however. And after the group enters the rat-infested tunnel leading to the hotel, it becomes clear that he will get much more than he bargained for. Danger, terror, and death await the creepers in a place ravaged by time and redolent of evil. The darkest secrets live in places you're not supposed to be. “Chilling.” —Stephen King, New York Times bestselling author of Doctor Sleep “Crack this novel, and it's like an alien abduction of your brain—forget resuming your normal life until it's finished. This will be a classic.” —Douglas Preston, New York Times bestselling co-author (with Lincoln Child) of White Fire “With its nonstop cascade of ingeniously contrived dangers and assaults, culminating in an apocalyptic finale, Creepers provides the essence of all thrillers, an intense emotional effect that will leave readers drained.” —Washington Post Creepers Keith Gray, 2010-11-30 Derwent Drive was known as the Speed Creep. A continual chain of Dashes into Blind. We'd all heard the story about the Creeper who dropped Blind into a garden, only to discover he was standing in a dog pound. It was also the longest creep; twenty-five houses all in a row, no bends, no kinks. And no Creeper had ever done the lot. But Jamie and I reckoned we could do it. Jamie was the best Creeper around. He was the best Buddie you could have. And he was mine. Ever heard about 'creeping' before? Probably not. Nobody really talks about it. That doesn't mean it doesn't happen. It does. Creeping over back fences all the way down a street without getting caught; without being hurt. It happens more than you might think. It's probably happening somewhere tonight.

Ghost Writer Edgar J. Hyde, 2021-03-02 In the notebook of a young boy named Charlie exists a story that writes itself... After moving to a new house, the lives of Charlie, Kate, and Neil get turned upside down when they learn the house might be haunted. Horrific dreams filled with paranormal specters that bleed into the real world and a wicked cult operating out of the school become everyday occurrences for this family. Can these teens put a stop to the great evil they've stumbled upon? About the Creepers series: Strange things are happening in the Creepers series! These high-interest, low-vocabulary middle grade illustrated chapter books are perfect for readers who love a good mix of spooky and silly. Featuring stories with tween protagonists who find themselves in paranormal predicaments, the Creepers series is set to capture the imaginations of young readers with thrilling tales of the strange things that keep us up at night.
