Ethnic Dress in the United States Annette Ferne Lynch, Mitchell D. Strauss, 2015 The clothes we wear tell stories about us--and are often imbued with cultural meanings specific to our ethnic heritage. This concise A-to-Z encyclopedia explores 150 different and distinct items of ethnic dress, their history, and their cultural significance within the United States. The clothing artifacts documented here have been or are now regularly worn by Americans as everyday clothing, fashion, ethnic or religious identifiers, or style statements. They embody the cultural history of the United States and its peoples, from Native Americans, white Anglo colonists, and forcibly relocated black slaves to the influx of immigrants from around the world. Entries consider how dress items may serve as symbolic linkages to home country and family or worn as visible forms of opposition to dominant cultural norms. Taken together, they offer insight into the ethnic-based core ideologies, myths, and cultural codes that have played a role in the formation and continued story of the United States.

Luxury and Fashion Marketing Satyendra Singh, 2020-12-06 The globalization of the world's markets has forced luxury brands to, in turn, become global and accessible in many developing countries and emerging markets. As a result, the demand for these luxury products has increased globally, creating a need for an education in luxury that acknowledges the global perspective yet, at the same time, incorporates subtle regional nuances into luxury and fashion marketing. Keeping this global and regional perspective, Luxury and Fashion Marketing: The Global Perspective examines the elements of luxury marketing that contribute to superior luxury brand performance. Specifically, this volume focuses on mission statements, logos, airport retailing, franchising, challenges in luxury marketing, fashion relating to politics, environment, and beachwear, and case studies on luxury brands and emerging markets. Luxury and Fashion Marketing: The Global Perspective is unique in that it is written in a simple and engaging style to explain the theories and concepts of luxury in relation to the ordinary in the global context. Each chapter has to-do activities, making the book essential reading for students, trainers, and practitioners interested in luxury and fashion marketing and management.

Singapore Ethnic Mosaic, The: Many Cultures, One People Mathew Mathews, 2017-10-31 Far from being a melting pot, multi-racial Singapore prides itself on the richness of its ethnic communities and cultures. This volume provides an updated account of the heterogeneity within each of the main communities — the Chinese, Malay, Indian, Eurasian and Others. It also documents the ethnic cultures of these communities by discussing their histories, celebrations, cultural symbols, life cycle rituals, cultural icons and attempts to preserve culture. While chapters are written by scholars drawing insight from a variety of sources ranging from academic publications to discussions with community experts, it is written in an accessible way. This volume seeks to increase intercultural understanding through presenting ample insights into the cultural beliefs and practices of the different ethnic communities. While this book is about diversity, a closer examination of the peoples and cultures of Singapore demonstrates the many similarities communities share in this Singaporean space. Ways of Being Ethnic in Southwest China Stevan Harrell,2012-11-20 Drawing on extensive fieldwork conducted in the 1980s and 1990s in southern Sichuan, this pathbreaking study examines the nature of ethnic consciousness and ethnic relations among local communities, focusing on the Nuosu (classified as Yi by the Chinese government), Prmi, Naze, and Han. It argues that even within the same regional social system, ethnic identity is formulated, perceived, and promoted differently by different communities at different times. Ways of Being Ethnic in Southwest China exemplifies a model in which ethnic consciousness and ethnic relations consist of drawing boundaries between one's own group and others, crossing those boundaries, and promoting internal unity within a group. Leaders and members of ethnic groups use commonalties and differences in history, culture, and kinship to promote internal unity and to strengthen or cross external boundaries. Superimposed on the structure of competing and cooperating local groups is a state system of ethnic classification and administration; members and leaders of local groups incorporate this system into their own ethnic consciousness, co-opting or resisting it situationally. The heart of the book consists of detailed case studies of three Nuosu village communities, along with studies of Prmi and Naze communities, smaller groups such as the Yala and Nasu, and Han Chinese who live in minority areas. These are followed by a synthesis that compares different configurations of ethnic identity in different communities and discusses the implications of these examples for our understanding of ethnicity and for the near future of China. This lively description and analysis of the region's complex ethnic identities and relationships constitutes an original and important contribution to the study of ethnic identity. Ways of Being Ethnic in Southwest China will be of interest to social scientists concerned with issues of ethnicity and state-building.

Localization: Tailoring offerings to local tastes and cultures can give boutiques an edge over larger, standardized retailers. Technology Integration: Implementing AR (Augmented Reality) for virtual try-ons or AI (Artificial Intelligence) for personalized recommendations can elevate the boutique shopping experience. 5. The key will be adaptation—whether it's embracing technology, tapping into emerging markets, or diversifying product lines. Additionally, as the post-COVID-19 world sees a rise in local tourism and local experiences, boutiques can play a significant role in offering localized shopping experiences to tourists. Conclusion The global boutique industry, despite its challenges, showcases resilience and adaptability. Sujatra Arpita Agnihotri, Saurabh Bhattacharya, 2023 Sujatra is an Indian wear proprietorship startup launched in Kolkata in 2016 by 63-year-old female entrepreneur, Chitrlekha Das. Das was explicitly passionate about designing sarees, the standard attire for women of India and exported as ethnic wear to women outside of India. By August 2020, Das had established her customer base in India and international markets, including Canada, Singapore, the United States, and the UK. However, her customer base was predominantly Indian women. Unlike other entrepreneurs who primarily believed in blitzscaling (i.e., expanding business to increase revenues but not necessarily earn profits), Das believed in delivering value while simultaneously making profits. She also differed from other entrepreneurs by selling sarees directly through her company's website rather than relying on third-party retailers. Though women outside India also showed interest in wearing sarees, and celebrities like Oprah Winfrey wore sarees on several occasions, there was skepticism if sarees would be culturally accepted in international markets. Should Das target Western women as well as she expands into international markets? Should she reconsider selling through third-party online retailers like Amazon? What aspects could she explore in designing sarees?
