Love hurricane Victory Storm, 2020-06-11 After four years of separation, Kira comes back to his best friend in Princeton, but the one she will find there isn't that sweet and frail boy, submitted to his father's violence, anymore, but a seventeen -year-old guy, angry with the whole world and with himself. Will Kira be able to wipe that hatred away and to teach him how to love? LUCAS. Kira went away four years ago, leaving me alone at the worst time in my life. I will never forgive her for that. She has come back now and all the hatred I feel, makes me stay away from her. However, every time she looks at me, I feel bewildered, lost and scared, but I can't forget who I am: I'm just a rotten stock and nobody could ever love a guy like me. KIRA. After four years of distance and despair for that forced leaving, I've come back to Lucas at last. But things have changed now and I've become a victim of his bullying. Who is that boy who only knows violence and who uses girls just to lay them? I don't know what has happened, but I'll do anything I can to wipe away the hatred I can see in his eyes and which is keeping him away from me. Translator: Valentina Giglio PUBLISHER: TEKTIME

Noaa U.s. Government Accountability Office, 2015-01-02 After a hurricane, assessing damage caused by different perils, such as high winds or flooding, is especially challenging when all that is left after the storm is a structure's foundation. For these properties, there may not be enough physical evidence to determine the extent to which damage was caused by wind versus flooding. Private property-casualty insurers typically cover wind damage but exclude coverage for flood damage. The National Flood Insurance Program, administered by the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), provides federally backed coverage for flood damage. After the hurricane season in 2005, legal disputes arose between private property-casualty insurers and policyholders over interpretation of policy language that excluded coverage of damage caused concurrently or sequentially by a covered peril—wind—and an excluded peril—flooding.

Lost in the Storm Jonathan Heidenreich, 2010-03 Life is a storm, and this collection of poems brings out the feelings that swirl all around us, even if they are felt for just a moment. In a wide array of poems, the poet celebrates his existence and the ingredients that make up the storm of life, keeping in mind that some storms are beautiful. In I Am, he celebrates his existence, writing: I am a blue-eyed son with a heritage as deep as the Mediterranean. I am the dream of my ancestors manifested in flesh and bone. I am the heart that beats along with the battle drums of my people. I am an image lost in time. The poet also asks, What Defines a Man? A portion reads: Is it the roads he's traveled? Or the lives he's touched? The sacrifices made? Or not so much? The blood he's shed? The tears withheld? The time he's spent? Or the pain he's felt? Each poem in this collection conveys feelings and experiences that everyone can understand. Journey through the hurricane of existence, whose eye encompasses us all and get Lost in the Storm.
