Shorts: Phase 7 #022 & #023 Alec Longstreth, 2019-02-16 From 2004 to 2012 Alec Longstreth created a dozen short comics for a variety of anthologies. These hard-to-find comics have now been collected in this volume, along with two all-new shorts.

Meanwhile Collab, Qintu, 2020-03-02 The lived realities of young queer people in African contexts are not well documented. On the one hand, homophobic political discourse tends to portray queer people as 'deviant' and 'unAfrican', and on the other, public health research and advocacy often portrays them as victims of violence and HIV. Of course, young queer lives are far more diverse, rich and complex. For this reason, the Qintu Collab was formed to allow young queer people from a few African countries to come together, share experiences and create context-specific, queer-positive media that documents relatable stories about and for queer African youth. We see this as a necessary step in developing a complex archive of queer African life, whilst also personalising queer experiences and challenging prejudicial stereotypes. The Collab is made up of eighteen queer youth from Botswana, Kenya and Zimbabwe, two academics, three artists and a journalist. We first worked in small groups in each country through a range of creative participatory methods that focused on personal reflection and story-telling. Young people created personal timelines, and made visual maps of their bodies, relationships, and spaces. We then had group discussions about themes that emerged to help decide what to include in the comic works. At the end of 2018, we all came together in Nairobi, Kenya, for a week to collaborate on this comic book, and a set of podcasts on similar topics. We worked through various ways of telling stories, and developed significant themes, including family, religion and spirituality, social and online queer spaces, sex, and romantic relationships. Each young person created a script and laid out the scenes for a comic that told a short story from their lives. They then worked one-on-one with an artist to finesse those ideas into a workable comic, and the artists thereafter developed each story through multiple rounds of feedback from the story's creator and the rest of the group.

Williamsburg Shorts Lucio Zago, 2017-06-23 For 23 years, Lucio Zago has lived on the busy intersection of Grand and Lorimer Street in Williamsburg, at a nexus between Caribbean, Italian, and Hasidic Jewish communities. Lucio has seen firsthand how Williamsburg was transformed from a working-class neighborhood to one of the trendiest. This comic book is a glimpse of events and characters that lived through the cultural and economic clashes, as witnessed by Lucio, during this dramatic period of gentrification.

Loose Shorts Ganzeer, 2019-04-15 LOOSE SHORTS is a collection of short comix (with commentary) by Ganzeer. Ranging in subject matter that includes biotech, cultural borders, environmentalism, and rebellion, LOOSE SHORTS is a window into the artist's process and his evolution as an experimenter over the years. About Ganzeer: Described as a chameleon by Carlo McCormick in the New York Times, Ganzeer operates seamlessly between art, design, and storytelling, creating what he has coined: Concept Pop, a brand of cultural insurgency that utilizes the aesthetics birthed by Pop Art in tackling the subject matter typically ascribed to Conceptual Art. His medium of choice as described by Kaelen Wilson-Goldie in Artforum is a little bit of everything: stencils, murals, paintings, pamphlets, comics, installations, graphic design, and more.

Manuel Briceno,Hanako Duffie,Nara Duffie,Sarah Ginocchio,Anna Lambert,Julia Lambert,Justus Lee,Charles Duffie,Miya Matsumune,Lola Piñon,Torin Quinn,Shannon Robertson,Emma Whyte,2016-10-27 These wonderful stories grew out of a graphic novel class in the fall of 2016. At the time, the youngest artist was 12 and the oldest 18. Some had virtually no experience drawing, others wanted to make a career in the arts, but all were supportive of one another through the entire process--from brainstorming ideas to designing characters, from storyboarding to drawing.This is their first graphic short story any of them have told. It took a lot of courage, and a lot of work.They choose the open-ended title, A Book Of... because there are so many different kinds of stories in these pages, while from around the table refers to the small classroom where they worked, together, sitting around one folding table.We hope you enjoy these stories, and that you'll be inspired to create stories of your own!
