4 Horror Shorts Eireann Tyler-Paris,2017-12-18 Short horror stories with varying themes and settings, from the trenches of world war one to modern day nightmares.The Nightwalker- I have a story to tell you. It's about a man named Eric. He was young, handsome and well educated but, like all young men, he had been called to war. I should warn you that this tale is not about the horrors of war. Though there are many, this story is about something far more frightening... The pale creatures- Nightmares are scary enough as a child but when they bleed into reality it's downright petrifying. Are these creatures real however or the manifestation of an abused child's fears?Morning Fog- My brother sat up and stared into the fog stretching out at the side of the road.Hey, are you okay?My brother looked up at me with wide eyes.Did you see that? He asked with a quiver in his voice.What? I replied, confused.There was something in the fog... There's no such things as monsters- Why are we scared of monsters under the bed? Why is it that sometimes, despite knowing no such things exists, we still fear the touch of cold flesh or rancid breath on our ankles when we leave the safety of our sheets? Well, let me tell you.

The Palgrave Encyclopedia of American Horror Film Shorts Gary D. Rhodes,David J. Hogan,2022-07-26 The Palgrave Encyclopedia of American Horror Film Shorts chronicles for the first time over 1,500 horror and horror-related short subjects theatrically released between 1915, at the dawn of the feature film era when shorts became a differentiated category of cinema, and 1976, when the last of the horror-related shorts were distributed to movie theaters. Individual entries feature plot synopses, cast and crew information, and – where possible – production histories and original critical reviews. A small number of the short subjects catalogued herein are famous; such as those featuring the likes of Buster Keaton, Laurel and Hardy, The Three Stooges, Bugs Bunny, and Daffy Duck; but the bulk are forgotten. The diverse content of these shorts includes ghosts, devils, witches, vampires, skeletons, mad scientists, monsters, hypnotists, gorillas, dinosaurs, and so much more, including relevant nonfiction newsreels. Their rediscovery notably rewrites many chapters of the history of horror cinema, from increasing our understanding of the sheer number horror films that were produced and viewed by audiences to shedding light on particular subgenres and specific narrative and historical trends.

Mister B. Gone Clive Barker,2009-10-13 You hold in your hands not a book at all, but a terrifying embodiment of purest evil. Can you feel the electric tingle in your fingers as you are absorbed by the demon Jakobok's tale of his unintentional ascent from the depths of the Inferno? Do you sense the cold dread worming its way into your bloodstream, your sinews, the marrow of your bones as you read more deeply into his earthly education and unspeakable acts? The filth you now grasp has been waiting patiently for you for nearly six hundred years. And now, before you are completely in its thrall, you would do well to follow the foul creature's admonition and destroy this abomination of ink and paper before you turn a single leaf and are lost forever. You have been warned.
