Formal to Practical Security Véronique Cortier, Claude Kirchner, Mitsuhiro Okada, Hideki Sakurada, 2009-05-14 The security issues set by the global digitization of our society have had, and will continue to have, a crucial impact at all levels of our social organization, including, just to mention a few, privacy, economics, environmental policies, national sovereignty, medical environments. The importance of the collaborations in the various fields of computer science to solve these problems linked with other sciences and techniques is clearly recognized. Moreover, the collaborative work to bridge the formal theory and practical applications becomes increasingly important and useful. In this context, and since France and Japan have strong academic and industrial backgrounds in the theory and practice of the scientific challenges set by this digitized world, in 2005 we started a formal French-Japanese collaboration and workshop series on computer security. The three first editions of these French-Japanese Computer Security workshops in Tokyo, September 5-7, 2005 and December 4-5, 2006 and in Nancy, March 13-14, 2008 were very fruitful and were accompanied by several important research exchanges between France and Japan. Because of this success, we launched a call for papers dedicated to computer security from its foundation to practice, with the goal of gathering together national versions of the rich set of papers and ideas presented at the workshops, yet opening the call to everyone interested in contributing in this context. This volume presents the selection of papers arising from this call and this international collaboration.

Strictly English Simon Heffer, 2011-05-31 Be in no doubt: the beer was drunk but the man drank the beer. We must avoid vulgarities like 'front up'. If someone is 'fronting up' a television show, then he is presenting it. Simon Heffer's incisive and amusingly despairing emails to colleagues at the The Daily Telegraph about grammatical mistakes and stylistic slips have attracted a growing band of ardent fans over recent years. Now, in his new book Strictly English, he makes an impassioned case for an end to the sloppiness that has become such a hallmark of everyday speech and writing, and shows how accuracy and clarity are within the grasp of anyone who is prepared to take the time to master a few simple rules. If you wince when you see different than in print, or are offended by people who think that infer and imply mean the same thing, then this book will provide reassurance that you are not alone. And if you believe that precise and elegant English really does matter, then it will prove required reading.

High Performance Computing Alex Veidenbaum, Kazuki Joe, Hideharu Amano, Hideo Aiso, 2003-11-18 The 5th International Symposium on High Performance Computing (ISHPC-V) was held in Odaiba, Tokyo, Japan, October 20-22, 2003. The symposium was thoughtfully planned, organized, and supported by the ISHPC Organizing Committee and its collaborating organizations. The ISHPC-V program included two keynote speeches, several invited talks, two panel discussions, and technical sessions covering theoretical and applied research topics in high-performance computing and representing both academia and industry. One of the regular sessions highlighted the research results of the ITBL project (IT-based research laboratory, <http://www.itbl.riken.go.jp/>). ITBL is a Japanese national project started in 2001 with the objective of realizing a virtual joint research environment using information technology. ITBL aims to connect 100 supercomputers located in main Japanese scientific research laboratories via high-speed networks. A total of 58 technical contributions from 11 countries were submitted to ISHPC-V. Each paper received at least three peer reviews. After a thorough evaluation process, the program committee selected 14 regular (12-page) papers for presentation at the symposium. In addition, several other papers with favorable reviews were recommended for a poster session presentation. They are also included in the proceedings as short (8-page) papers.

The program committee gave a distinguished paper award and a best student paper award to two of the regular papers. The distinguished paper award was given for "Code and Data Transformations for Improving Shared Cache Performance on SMT Processors" by Dimitrios S. Nikolopoulos. The best student paper award was given for "Improving Memory Latency Aware Fetch Policies for SMT Processors" by Francisco J. Cazorla.

Message and Medium Caroline Tagg, Mel Evans, 2020-06-08 Studies of digital communication technologies often focus on the apparently unique set of multimodal resources afforded to users and the development of innovative linguistic strategies for performing mediated identities and maintaining online social networks. This edited volume interrogates the novelty of such practices by establishing a transhistorical approach to the study of digital communication. The transhistorical approach explores language practices as lived experiences grounded in historical contexts, and aims to identify those elements of human behaviour that transcend historical boundaries, looking beyond specific developments in communication technologies to understand the enduring motivations and social concerns that drive human communication. The volume reveals long-term patterns in the indexical functions of seemingly innovative written and multimodal resources and the ideologies that underpin them, and shows that methods are not necessarily contingent on their datasets: historical analytic frameworks can be applied to digital data and newer approaches used to understand historical data. These insights present exciting opportunities for English language researchers, both historical and modern.
