Speech! Speech! Geoffrey Hill,2003 With our minds and ears fouled by degraded public speech how do we begin to think and speak honestly? At a time when our common language has been made false and ugly, how does the artist find words to communicate truth and beauty? Geoffrey Hill addresses these questions in these poems.

Craftsman Bungalows Jud Yoho, 2007 Craftsman

Bungalows Jud Yoho Reprint of the deluxe edition published in Seattle in 1916 Jud Yoho was a Seattle entrepreneur who offered plans for new homes based on the Craftsman and Bungalow styles developed in the Arts and Crafts movement. This pattern book contains photographs, floorplans and brief descriptions of these dream houses. The new introduction by Dennis Andersen, an architectural historian, puts Yoho and this popular movement in perspective. This reprint will be of great interest to Arts and Crafts enthusiasts, homeowners, collectors, and architectural and social historians.

The Seattle Bungalow Janet Ore, 2007 In the early twentieth century, the appearance of new houses across the United States shifted dramatically. Rejecting the elaborate decoration and complexity of Victorian homes, these new houses featured open, parlorless interiors and a minimalist aesthetic, radiating an aura of warmth, coziness, and naturalness. Nowhere were such residences more evident than in West Coast cities, especially Seattle, where explosive growth generated entire neighborhoods of this new house type--the bungalow. It was the nation's first modern home, and it established the essential characteristics of popular housing for the rest of the twentieth century. In The Seattle Bungalow, Janet Ore modifies the common notion that architectural change flows only from the design elite--the architects, domestic reformers, and planners who advocate for changes in domestic architecture--and argues that ordinary people played a crucial role in creating the bungalow. Through their growing power as consumers, modest-income families influenced the physical form of early twentieth-century houses and suburban landscapes. Still operating within a nineteenth-century labor and contracting system, small home builders responded to rising consumer demand for new conveniences such as electricity and central heating by simplifying their structures. Ambitious salespeople-real estate agents, plan book purveyors, and builders--created a new market for affordable small houses through astute advertising and financing. And once families acquired their homes, they used them flexibly, adapting their lives to their domestic spaces and refashioning their homes when necessary. From such efforts sprang the Seattle bungalow, an artifact of ordinary people's part in creating modern culture.

Janet Oreis assistant professor of history at Colorado State University and has been a contributing writer to Pacific Northwest Quarterly and Perspectives in Vernacular Architecture. Janet Ore's subject - the origins, marketing, development, and legacy of working-class housing in Seattle - offers an opportunity not only to explore architectural history but to characterize the economic, aesthetic, moral, and social dimensions of such housing. - Dennis Andersen, co-author of Distant Corner: Seattle Architects and the Legacy of H. H. Richardson A valuable record of the housing boom that transformed the American suburban landscape in the first decades of the twentieth century. - Kingston Heath, Director, Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, University of Oregon

William Kentridge William Kentridge, 2017 Triumphs and Laments is not only a celebration of William Kentridge's (born 1955) monumental frieze drawn along the banks of the Tiber River in Rome and the performance which inaugurated it, but a gorgeously produced guide to one of his most memorable and ambitious projects. Designed with the early Baedekers in mind, this bilingual book acts as an essential component to viewing Kentridge's erased-graffiti figures and understanding the process of their creation, with useful gatefolds, a poster and a leporello of the frieze to accompany the texts. These include a conversation between Carlos Basualdo and the artist and two essays, by Salvatore Settis and Gabriele Guercio, which explore the meaning behind the work and its resonance with the millennia-long history of the city of Rome.
